AMERICA'S OLDEST SOCIETY JOURNAL

Maybe This Will Be The Year!

The handsome couple you see in the beautiful picture above have just made a very wise decision.

They have decided to get the facts about Cadillac—to see if, perhaps, the time has come for them to move up to the "car of cars".

And we hope sincerely that 1955 will be their Cadillac year. For this is the perfect year to discover the joys of Cadillac ownership!

Never before has the car offered so much by way of beauty, or luxury, or performance. It is inspiring to behold . . . and thrilling to drive . . . and wonderful to own . . . and economical to operate—to a degree unprecedented even by Cadillac.

If a new Cadillac is high on your list of hopes for the new year, we think you should give careful consideration to these facts. And we suggest that you make a "resolution" now—to drive the 1955 Cadillac!

We will be happy to see you at any time!

PROWL in

At night the 'Glades take on a new look, complete with sound effects.

HE EVERGLADES at night are different, dark and strangely enough—NOISY! Anyone who has been on a night prowl in the 'Glades will testify that the vast area which sprawls across the lower part of Florida is just as interesting in the moonlight as in the sunshine.

However, not too many people have yet taken up prowling in the 'Glades at night, although it is becoming a popular Saturday night event for many from December through April in the Everglades National Park near Homestead.

During the park's winter—and most important season—prowls are conducted from the Royal Palm Ranger station in the Everglades National Park under the guidance of a park ranger-naturalist. The weekly hikes are held regularly at 7:15 p.m. on Saturday unless the weather prevents, and have attracted as many as 50 people for a single outing. The prowls were first held during the 1953-54 season.

The appeal of the out-of-doors at night attracts not only adults, but children as well. It makes an excellent family outing, and being held early in the evening permits even very young children to make the trip. And they love it!

There's no fee or offering. Your only ticket of admission is your interest—shown by your presence—and a flashlight which comes in handy while strolling in the dark.

The prowl party starts from the modern Royal Palm Ranger station. And the curtain goes up immediately on the wildlife acts. In an unkempt cypress tree in the lagoon near the ranger station is the first 'Glades creature to be seen—a huge white heron, who normally disdains the spotlight of fame thrown upon him by the many flashlights which probe his roosting place.

Usually he ignores the winking lights, but sometimes he awkwardly flaps away to a darker spot in the neighboring sawgrass, returning to his favorite roost after the Saturday night prowlers are gone.

While you're still along the banks of the lagoon, your flashlights seek out alligators swimming or lying half submerged on the opposite shore. Despite the darkness—which varies with the stage of the moon on a particular night—you find it is not difficult to locate the 'gators by the reflections from their eyes.

Each prowler quickly learns you can tell the sex of a 'gator by the color of the eyes. A pair of red coals gleaming in the darkness means a husky male lurks in the black waters. A pair of greenish eyes announces the presence of a female or a young 'gator of either sex. And it is surprising how many red and green lights can be seen along the edge of the pond.

Prowling at night has an unexpected advantage. The flashlights' beams can probe beneath the surface of the lagoon, and reveal underwater life that would be invisible in daylight. Gar fish are plentiful and actually appear to be spotlight lovers, languidly swimming out of the circle of light if they bother to move. However, let a 'gator slosh in the vicinity—they love to eat gars—and the gars disappear but quick like.

On the edge of the lagoon your flashlight can pick up snails' eggs and grasshoppers. In the shallow water can be seen bream, and occasionally a turtle who appears much disgusted—if a turtle can appear that way—at the probing lights. You may be lucky enough to see a bass searching for minnows, or some other underwater specimen.

From the lagoon you move down the road towards the entrance to the Anhinga Trail, pausing to inspect each bit of water, to watch coots in their waddling flight across the water and lily pads, or to see a 'gator crawl up a shallow stream bed, with perhaps only his snout above water, but its ungainly body outlined against the white sandy bottom by the flashlight beams.

It's during this part of the prowl that everyone suddenly realizes the 'Glades are noisy at night. Strange sounds are heard in the underbrush. A coot splashes across the pond. In the distance rises the wailing cry of a limpkin. A bullfrog grunts close at hand, and others answer in the dense sawgrass. Gradually each separate sound takes on a tone of its own. The silent glades are no longer silent.

And then the Anhinga Trail is reached. You move quietly, very quietly—the ranger specifically requests subdued lights and muffled talking to prevent scaring the roosting birds—out onto the boardwalk over a swampy part of the 'Glades. In daylight this walkway is one of the most popular attractions of the national park, and it loses none of its appeal by moonlight.

At the observation station, you again probe the darkness with your flashlights. A couple of husky 'gators put on a brief act by slowly swimming into sight, their eyes pinpointed by the lights, and then as if deciding they've done their part, slowly submerge and disappear.

Everywhere the drama of life in the wild goes on. Gar fish frantically swim away from an unseen enemy—'gators. Frogs grunt and sometimes give forth with a death cry signalling a meal for some snake or 'gator. In the bushes, heron and wood ibis roost, along with indistinguishable anhingas and gallinules whose dark colors blend into the night.

And then it is time for the party to retrace its steps. Off the Anhinga Trail, back down the road the prowlers go, their flashlights swinging in the night.

The lights of the Ranger Station loom ahead. The ancient cypress tree's roosting white heron is still gone, and the prowl is over. And in the distance, the 'Glades are as noisy as ever.

Reprinted by permission of FLORIDA WILDLIFE, official publication of the FLORIDA GAME AND FRESH WATER FISH COMMISSION.

Alligators are plentiful near the Royal Palm Ranger Station. This one was surprised heading up a small creek which passes under the road. He didn't seem to mind the flashlights of the members of the night prowl.

The Boca Raton Club

HE EXCITING PLANS for the second annual Polo Ball to be held February 25 at the Boca Raton Club are rapidly nearing completion under the chairmanship of the lovely, magnetic Mrs. Stephen Sanford whose efforts helped make last year's Inaugural Polo Ball at the Club such an outstanding success.

This major social event of the season which will take place in the Club's Patio Royale will again benefit the Damon Runyan Memorial Fund for Cancer Research.

The general Ball theme will be "Polo, Sport of Kings" and decorations complete to tack room, live polo ponies, stalls, sawdust and trophies will contribute to the glamorous atmosphere of the gala festivities.

One of the high points of the evening will be the selection of a "Cinderella" as ruling monarch of the magnificent function. Queen Cinderella's subjects will be the capacity crowd of the socially and fashionably prominent who are expected to attend the party.

Cinderella will be a young girl between the ages of thirteen and sixteen, selected on a nation-wide basis for character, personality, intelligence and possible talent. Among the many tributes to be provided for her will be a scholarship, a screen test and a veritable shower of gifts.

The identity of Cinderella will be revealed at the stroke of midnight, and flashed over radio and television as she is crowned.

Another delightful part of the Ball will be the recreation of "A Night At Bradley's" bringing back for those who have known Palm Beach for many seasons the remembrance of this famed casino of a bygone era.

Plans for the Ball also include a dinner featuring Continental cuisine and wines, entertainment by nationally known stars, and dancing to the music of Tony Cabot's orchestra. Seating has been provided for more than 500 guests.

Fabulous fashions by Milady will lend beauty and brilliance, many gowns having been especially designed for this one night.

Donors are contributing virtually unsolicited to the Polo Ball of 1955. Among the donations which were first offered to the Ball Committee was an Eldorado Cadillac of "polo white" with "chukker green" leather upholstery. The beautiful car was given by General Motors. The Northwood Mink Farms has donated pelts for a $15,000 polo mink coat. The New York furrier, Benn Mandel has given a $5,000 white mink stole and also a charming "polo white" fur expressly for the Cinderella of the Ball.

The Eldorado Cadillac which was the main award of last year's Polo Ball was won by Mr. Spelman Prentice, who donated it back to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund. Walter Winchell immediately made it a prize in a nation-wide contest which he conducted as a further benefit to the Fund.

Assisting Mrs. Sanford and the 1955 Polo Ball Committee is Mr. J. Stuart Robertson, vice president of the Boca Raton Club, and the energetic originator of the Polo Ball.

DESCRIPTION DESCRIPTION DESCRIPTION DE LA COMPANION DE LA COMP

HE TEMPO of Palm Beach's ordinarily peaceful pace jumped into high gear January 17th with the inaugural run to the Hialeah Race Course of the Palm Beach Biltmore "race special"—for this year something new was added—in fact it seems that every year, the popular "race special" which chugs merrily down to the gates of Hialeah in 85 minutes flat, springs a happy surprise for race-goers.

This time it was the addition of three private railroad cars to the streamlined eight car special, marking the first time in the history of racing that turf fans travelled in this de luxe mode. The private cars attached to the Biltmore "race special" included those of railroad tycoon Robert R. Young, Biltmore owner Daniel E. Taylor and the former private car of the late Henry Flagler which carried Florida

East Coast Railway officials to the track. In fact it seemed that everyone in the Palm Beaches turned out for this colorful event.

Both Mr. Taylor's brothers from Virginia and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor of Virginia Beach and Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Norfolk flew down for the Hialeah opening and along with the Leslie Taylors of Palm Beach, made up a family party aboard the Sea Level.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, without whom no Hialeah opening would be complete, occupied her usual corner in the club car section with her sister, Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, and house guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea of Westbury,

Saint Augustine

HEN THE country's top amateur golfers converge on the Hotel Ponce de Leon later this month for the National Championship of Golf Club Champions, they—and especially their ladies—will enjoy one of the season's most anticipated social events, the annual fashion show of the St. Augustine Junior Service League.

On the night of February 19th, they and everybody else in town, will gather at the Ponce to see an elaborate presentation of resort fashions, worn by more than 80 of the town's prettiest girls. The theme of the fashion show is "Street Scene," and already young League matrons in dungarees, with sketches, hammers and paint brushes in hand, are working in the hotel's magnificent dining rooms and the Gold Ball Room, designing the sets and scenery for the show.

The Junior Service League was founded in 1935; keeps its membership down to fifty active members; and although the requirements for hours devoted to charitable work are rigorous, and strictly enforced, invitations to membership are much sought after.

Mrs. Jane Fayssoux relaxes at her new waterfront estate "Naivetee" in Palm Valley, just north of St. Augustine on the Inland Waterway. Mrs. Fayssoux has Captain Tucker Gibbs, U.S.N. (Retired), joined those who seek week-end piece in this enchanting spot, where the quiet of the woods is broken only by the friendly Gibbs, a member of a pioneer St. Augustoot of passing yachts. Literally, the tine family, after a colorful and distinestate name means "natural simplicity." Mrs. Fayssoux also has a beach home in home to live and to take part in many Ponte Vedra Beach, where she has spent civic activities. Captain and Mrs. Gibbs many winters and has a wide who will head the St. Johns County Red Cross fund campaign this year. Captain guished career in the service, has come winter in St. Augustine, often spend their summers abroad.

The annual fashion show is the top fund-and-fun raising event of the year; but the League also runs a thrift shop all year, and with really substantial funds supports to a large extent both "Junior House" for children from broken homes, and "Sunnyside," a rest home for the aged. The League contributes to a dozen other charities, eye-screens all St. Johns County school children.

League President Mrs. Roy O. Barnes has appointed Mrs. F. Glenn Wood, Jr., chairman of the show, and Mrs. R. J. Plant, Jr. co-chairman. Other members responsible for a smooth production are Mrs. Hamilton Upchurch, Mrs. Bert Meade, Mrs. Robert Curtan, Mrs. Henry Isaacs, Jr., Mrs. A. H. Craig, Jr., and Mrs. Charles Olson.

Getting back to the golf tournament . . . the one for golf club champions runs from February 15 through the 20th, and overlaps with the Hotel Ponce de Leon Best Ball Championship, which opens on the 21st, through the 22nd.

This year's is the 23rd annual event, and golfers from 36 states have entered. Defending champion is Walker Cup Player W. L. ("Dynamite") Goodloe, Jr., the sensational and colorful golfer from Valdosta, Georgia.

Others who are signed up are Harvie Ward, former British Amateur Champion from San Francisco; Dick Chapman, one of the country's foremost amateur players, from Pinehurst, North Carolina; Jimmie Paul of Daytona Beach and Philadelphia; Willard McConnell from Wilmington, Delaware; Frank Allen of Pottsville, Pennsylvania; Art Ruffin, Jr. of Wilson, North Carolina; Ray Taylor, Greensboro, North Carolina; Bev Nabers of St. Petersburg, Florida; and Frank Souchak of Pittsburgh.

Also vying for the crown will be William E. Webb of Kansas City, Missouri; Ken Smith from Ridgewood, New Jersey; Calvin McCarthy, Peabody, Massachusetts; Dr. Charles K. Emery, Corpus Christi; and Louis C. Krauthoff from Stamford, Connecticut.

Lots of gay events are planned for the golfing week, including a large cocktail party to be given by Ponce de Leon Hotel manager Edward G. Flather, Jr., and Mrs. Flather, a buffet-supper and dinner-dancing, swimming in the windsheltered pool, and winding up with the awarding of prizes.

The tournament will be directed by Mr. Ray McCarthy of New York, Palm Beach and St. Augustine, assisted by Jack Ryan, pro at the Buffalo Country Club, and in the winter at the Ponce de Leon Golf Club.

The Haynes Memorial Trophy, the top award, will be the aim of more than 100 players. The late Lawrence C. Haynes, vice president and treasurer of the Florida East Coast Hotel Company, was instrumental in bringing golf to the East coast of Florida in the early days.

There's to be a rally of the ever-larger clan of sports-car enthusiasts in Sebring, Florida on March 19th, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Victor Rahner, Jr. of St. Augustine will be there, driving their gay and natty MG.

The young Rahners are so wrapped up in their new hobby that they have momentarily given up, or are softpedalling, their other interests in golf and sailing. Mr. Rahner, who also sails racing boats, is now vice president of the Sports Car Club of Jacksonville—and earlier this month the Rahners entertained in St. Augustine for members of the club from the Gate City. The sports car bug bites men and women alike, and at the Rahner's party the ladies put aside talk of clothes and children to discuss r.p.m.'s and torques . . . and some really know what they mean!

Among the Rahners' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Clendening, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Speed, and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Jenkins, who will also make the sports car circuit this winter; and as his studies at the University of Florida permit, brother Tom Rahner expects to join in zooming along the tracks.

Mrs. Rahner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Eberhart of Baltimore and St. Augustine, is an active and avid gardener; and for a number of years has been a member of the board of directors of the Junior Service League.

In a town the size of St. Augustine, the Red Cross fills the places of many of a larger city's numerous charity organizations; and here the Red Cross takes on a personal aspect, doing a hundred services to the town with the support of the town's leading citizens.

Preparing for the Red Cross campaign next month, the St. Johns County chapter has asked Captain Tucker Gibbs to lead the drive; and Captain Gibbs, U. S. Navy (Retired) is launching the drive as he would a ship, working out well in advance the myriad details for a successful job.

Captain Gibbs is a member of one of St. Augustine's oldest families, the son of George William Gibbs and Margaret Watkins Gibbs. He graduated from Annapolis in 1911, went into the Supply Corps, was a pioneer in naval aviation as a staff member of the Northern Bombing Group during World War I. After the war he saw special duty with the Hoover Commission to Europe, had duty in China, at the War College in Newport, and aboard the Mississippi and the Saratoga. In 1940, while serving as aide to the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, he made a "hospital cruise"—in his words— and retired.

The Navy allowed him exactly 18 months of retirement, then he was called back right after Pearl Harbor, to active duty as Chief of Staff of Naval Operations in Key West. He stayed in that job all during the war, retiring finally in 1947.

Captain and Mrs. Gibbs—she is also a member of an old St. Augustine family, was Clarissa Anderson—spend their winters here, usually travel in Europe in the Summer. On their trip last year, the Gibbs spent several weeks in Belgium, where the Captain renewed old acquaintances of his Hoover Commission days.

Captain Gibbs, a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, the New York Yacht Club, Retired Officers Association, and the Naval Institute, is a brother of George W. Gibbs, president of Gibbs Corporation of Jacksonville, and also a brother of the late George Cooper Gibbs, judge of the Circuit Court of the Jacksonville district, and former Attorney General of Florida.

With the good Captain steering, the Red Cross drive this year promises to be active and interesting—and if there's heavy emphasis on Water Safety in the campaign it will be understandable. Without exaggeration, however, the Red Cross handles training of all St. Augustine Beach life guards; trains hundreds each year in first aid; has a junior Red Cross program, and a complete disaster relief set-up.

But it is probably in its home-service field that it is most appreciated—volunteer workers visit dozens of homes each month where illness or misfortune have struck, and at Red Cross headquarters financially embarrassed or stranded servicemen turn up for assistance. Since the Red Cross is small and personal, they help now, sometimes worry later about whether a case is direct Red Cross responsibility.

Florida Inaugurates a Governor wo old Southern style homes were scenes of much of the color, festivity and formal gatherings of the inauguration day of Governor LeRoy Collins. Notables in the military, politics, business and industry from major points in Florida and special guests from several Latin American countries attended the inaugural activities in the two homes, which are contrasted not so much in style as they are in time, having been built almost 100 years apart.

The two, columned, ante-bellum style homes are the Florida Governor's mansion, built in 1907, and the Collins home, the Grove, built in 1825 by the great-grandfather of Florida's first lady, Mrs. Mary Call Collins, Richard Keith Call, Florida's second territorial governor.

And the charm, grace and solidity of the old draped a warm setting around the ushering in stages of a new day in Florida.

The Governors—outgoing Acting Governor Charley E. Johns and incoming Governor LeRoy Collins—wore the traditional garb, tails and dark trousers and top hats. But it was a field day for the ladies.

Three former Florida Governors—Fuller Warren and Mrs. Warren, Millard Caldwell and Mrs. Caldwell, and Doyle Carleton—Lieutenant-General James A. Van Fleet, who resides in Auburndale and formerly commanded American Expeditionary Forces in Korea; Mrs. Dan McCarthy, wife of the late Governor, and brothers John and Brian McCarty, and many other distinguished guests were present.

Governor and Mrs. Collins and their four children—Roy, Jr., 20, a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy, Jane, 16, Mary Call 12, Darby, four—led the grand march at each of the three balls.

Several parties were held for the Latin American guests from Colombia, Venezuela, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, and Mexico. A dinner was held for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps, and a luncheon was given in their honor by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ausley. The night following the inauguration a pre-supper party was held for them at the home of Charles Belvin, followed by a buffet supper in their honor by Governor and Mrs. Collins at The Grove.

Mrs. LeRoy Collins, first lady of Florida, led the grand march with her husband at the inaugural balls wearing a Christian Dior gown of white silk and tulle.

She wore a necklace of seed pearl medallions, which first belonged to her grandmother. The necklace was given to her grandmother by Richard Keith Call.

The skirt of her gown was bouffant, with an overskirt caught in the back into a small bustle effect. The strapless, fitted bodice was outlined with rhinestones. The underskirt was pleated tulle.

For the inauguration ceremony, Mrs. Collins selected a Rounelle pale beige shantung costume suit, with a high neck, encircled by a narrow band of embroidered rhinestones. The suit was cut very simply, had three-quarter sleeves, and was trimmed with its own material. She wore matching shoes, a beige straw hat and white gloves.

Jane Collins, 16, wore a pink ballerina length gown of net, trimmed with iridescent sequins. Her shoes were of satin, in matching pink. Jane's daytime costume was a tailored tweed suit in beige, with brown belt and shoes and a matching hat.

Mary Call Collins, 12, chose a soft green net over taffeta gown, in ballerina length. It was touched with white daisies.

Darby Collins, 4, wore a hand made, smocked, white frock to her father's inauguration.

Darby Collins' inaugural day dress was made especially for her, especially for this occasion.

In January, 1954, when the Collinses were in St. Petersburg, Mrs. Collins was shopping one day in a hotel little folks' shop, and admired a hand made, smocked dress.

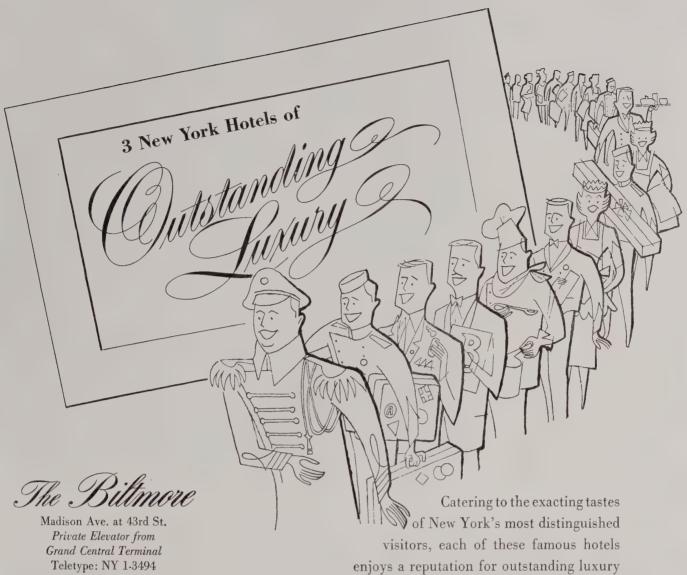

Last May, after the second primary, Mrs. Collins had a note from Lil Daniels of St. Petersburg, who explained that she had overheard the admiring comments, that she was the creator of the dress, and that she would like to make Darby's inauguration day costume.

Lil Daniels made the dress worn by President Eisenhower's granddaughter, for the presidential inauguration.

The dress Darby wore was an heirloom model. Made of silky white pique, it is intricately smocked in a heart-shaped design, in bright red with touches of blue. Hand made tatting encircles the round collar and cuffs of the puffed sleeves.

With the dress, also made by Lil Daniels, four-year-old Darby wore an eyelet slip, crinoline petticoat and eyelet ruffled panties.

Mrs. R. A. Gray, wife of the secretary of state, wore an inaugural ball gown of aquarmarine silk crepe and lace, with jewel-encrusted draped bodice and straight skirt.

Mrs. Richard Ervin, attorney general's wife, chose a white chiffon gown, fashioned in Grecian lines, fitted at the waist and ending in a swirling circular skirt. Loops of chiffon were draped at the sides and back of the skirt.

The bodice had soft folds which formed a cowl neckline that curved to a low neckline in the back. Long, full sleeves were gathered at the wrists with self ties. She wore pearls and carried a silver clutch bag.

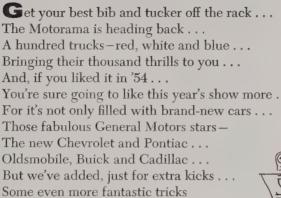

Mrs. J. Edwin Larson's gown was of beige lace over chartreuse taffeta, cut with a full, floor length skirt and fitted bodice which featured a sweetheart neckline. She wore pearls. Mrs. Larson is the wife of the state treasurer.

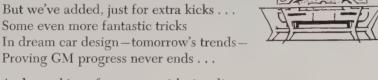

Mrs. Clarence M. Gay, wife of the state comptroller, wore a gown of white lace, trimmed in iridescent sequins, with necklines and earrings of rhinestones.

ALUMINUM

... for Furniture!

F YOU'VE BEEN THINKING of metal furniture as something to keep on your side porch, you have a special invitation to visit a newly decorated Palm Beach studio. Mr. Richard L. Sandfort, who is visiting off and on in Palm Beach this winter has taken the original Addison Mizner studio on Worth Avenue, and done it in baroque and classical period furnishings which exactly suit its Spanish atmosphere.

Nothing could be more formal and substantial in feeling than the important pieces he has used in the apartment rooms and loggia. Yet every one is made of light weight, easy-to-care-for aluminum designed at the Sandfort Aluminum Company, of which Mr. Sandfort is president and designer. The company's entire operation is based on the concept that aluminum can be used in furniture in any way that more traditional woods can be used.

The furnishings of the studio living room are in tones of grey with black accents in small pieces, such as the marbled top cocktail table which is in front of the light grey cushioned sora. Heavy floor to ceiling drapes framing the double doors to the outdoor loggia are in antique coral, bringing out the coloring of the original tile floor. The coral is carried through in aluminum upholstered side chairs.

A large baroque console table with an intricate overhanging antique mirror is on the north wall of the studio, and sets the period for the room.

It is a meticulously exact replica and has the same Chinese feeling in its bamboo lattice and leaf pattern which is seen in a graceful glass, four-tiered open shelf. It is difficult to believe that the mirror, which in its original form weighed more than thirty pounds, and the table with its exquisitely executed shell decorated apron, are all of aluminum. The table surface is of smoked glass with hints of the gold which appears in the Chinese dolphin legs of a large round table between the two chaise lounges of the room.

The chaise lounges with the soft and upholstered chairs give the room its feeling of substantial comfort, and continue

The apartment bedroom is in gold and black against white stucco walls. Classical in feeling, its major piece is the canopied bed shown above. Greek designs have been used, combining harmoniously with contemporary design furniture in the rest of the room.

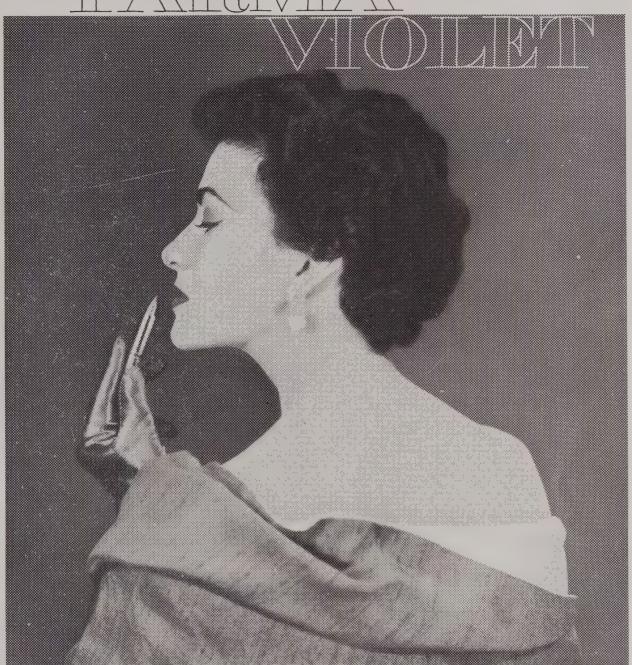

The southeast corner of the original Mizner studio over Worth Avenue which has been decorated by Mr. Richard L. Sandfort for public viewing at 327 Worth Avenue. All the furnishings of the apartment, including major pieces, are made of aluminum.

The living room enters onto a tropically planted loggia through double doors.

Valances which are in aluminum painted in tones of grey to give a silver effect are used as a heading for the ceiling to floor drapes.

the shell design of the console table. Small striped stools also carry out the theme.

Original notes stemming from Mr. Sandfort's interest in pets are the three figures of monkeys which perch among the leaves of the mirror. They are reproductions of antique pieces, but they also strongly resemble his very much alive monkey, Bobby, who makes his home in the apartment loggia.

The loggia is also done in aluminum and is beautifully planted, with a view overlooking the west end of Worth Avenue.

Classical drama is the keynote of the bedroom. The room is dominated by a black canopied bed, almost ceiling high and draped in gold fabric, also used for the bedspread. The black of the room furnishings is in stark contrast to white stucco walls. The tile floor, which in the living room is completely without covering, is accented with a white rough textured rug.

Although the bed and its canopy are in border designs taken from Greek antiquity, the bedroom tables, lovely sconces, and graceful hurricane lamps are done with an early American and modern feeling. The mixture of periods, characteristic of current interior decoration trends, is accomplished in this room with outstanding success. The Chinese dolphins seen in the living room are even brought briefly into the bedroom in two lamps done in gold.

The studio will be open through the season and may be seen through the Sandfort Shop at 327 Worth Avenue.

"Aluminum," Mr. Sandfort says, "is one third the weight of iron, yet designed into furniture it seems to give an even greater appearance of solidity." He believes aluminum furniture is ideally suited to southern climates. Because it requires so little attention to remain in good condition, it is particularly useful in homes which have to be closed for part of the year. It can be instrumental, he thinks, in cutting down the often great expenses of opening and closing homes.

Color designing is part of the Sandfort concept. Furniture may be had in twenty-six colors, and in some wonderful spatter paint combinations on white or black backgrounds. Any combinations of color or design may be had to order to suit the exact setting in which the furniture is to be used.

The large console table and antique mirror above are a focal point of the decoration of the apartment which is in restful greys, antique coral, and accents of gold and black.

Junney" in Jamaica

BLUE SEAS, BEAUTY, DIGNITY and HAPPINESS

by Dorothy Jurney, Women's Editor, Miami Herald

HIS MAY BE A HODGE PODGE OF INCIDENTS. For you who have been to Jamaica, I hope it brings back happy memories and the yearning to go back; for those who haven't been there, maybe it will tempt you into this wonderful Pleasure Island.

You'll want to see all the island and it's a big island. You don't want to stay put, although you could spend days, weeks or a season in one spot, making sorties out from there. There are five distinct resort areas to see.

Everyone asks, which did you like best? I couldn't truthfully choose one over the other. Each has a different lure.

Take Kingston for instance. Sit for a moment and watch the world move by—a native boy with rear end sticking out of seatless pants, he's not the least embarrassed; a big brown fellow in flowing robes, full beard and a mop of reddish kinky hair, a member of Pocomania, no doubt; a very proper English woman hatted and gloved but in dress of year before last; a dignified black Jamaican in beautifully tailored linen.

Or sit in the Myrtle Bank Hotel patio with the trade winds cooling you and eat some ackee and codfish, a specialty of the house.

How can anyone help but like Kingston? The shopping is wonderful there.

Trip to Irish Town

One of the nicest evenings I had there was at a mountain home at Irish Town, 2,300 feet up. I certainly was leary of the whole thing on the way; you'll know what I mean after you have your first Jamaican mountain drive. I went up at night and when the dark people surrounded our car, when the driver asked directions, I was, to understate the case, uneasy.

Later I learned that the country folk are really very friendly. But there are so many of them. A million and a half people live in Jamaica.

Tichfield Hotel which Errol Flynn used to own. This is a beautiful spot—twin blue harbors locked in lush palm and banana trees and waving clumps of bamboo.

This is the place to go rafting on the Rio Grande, a beautiful and exciting trip on perilous-looking but really very safe bamboo rafts.

The most fun I had at Port Antonio came from the assortment of folk gathered in this remote spot—a young American couple, who were having a time getting Flynn's yacht ready for an ocean voyage, a charming English woman of undetermined age who worked for Shell Oil Company in Bogota, Columbia, a weather beaten little man who had seen years of service in the English Army in India, the Negro doctor of the neighborhood, the white Jamaican Carl Webster who was managing the Inn.

Next stop out was the Tower Isle Hotel. Among its delights are a perfect bathing beach and breakfast served on your own balcony looking out to sea.

Tower Isle is in the Ocho Rios area which is filled with hotels, each individual, not at all like our Miami Beach ones. Some are great houses of early planters. Beautiful Shaw Park is a good illustration. It's half way up the mountain side with its own waterfall and pools.

Then there are the cottage colonies like Silver Sands. We saw the cottage that Queen Elizabeth used when she and the Duke and their party stopped for a private luncheon there last year.

The scenery along here is magnificent. In fact it is spectacular all over Jamaica.

The green mountains and the blue sea and a native population which is happy and kindly, though terribly, terribly poor.

And as we drove along my driver told many things about

his land and about the country people. And he spoke in that soft musical way characteristic of the Jamaicans. His accent was a combination of B. B. C. English and Jamaican "mon" for "man" and "cyon" for "can," etc.

His name is Wilbert Brown, a good driver, a fine guide and he welcomes the work.

I was curious about Brown's family and on my last day in Jamaica he took me to see his wife and five children.

The Browns live in half of a frame house in a crowded but clean section of Kingston. Their home was immaculate and you have never seen such happy youngsters as the five little Browns who came out to greet me.

The Jamaicans know none of the restraints that more sophisticated folk do. Their happiness, their anger or their sorrow is easy to see. I shall never forget all the dancing delight expressed in the face of 5-year-old Berkley Brown who circled around and around me.

There was ten-year-old Lorna, who helps her mother sew, earning money for school from the dresses she makes for her playmates. And there was LeRoy, who that day had his twelfth birthday; Heron who was seven and Maxine eight. Maxine is the one of the Browns named for the daughter of Mr. Brown's American employer when Brown was working as a Jamaican laborer in the United States.

Brown told me how good his children are. "Often," he said, "I will come home at night and Lorna will say to me, 'Oh, Mr. Brown, there is a movie we would like to see,' and I will tell her, 'But I haven't the cosh tonight,' and she will say, 'That's all right, we will wait until you have the cosh'."

Any Voodoo?

As we drove over the Jamaican roads Brown also told me about such things as obeah (voodoo) that marijuana is regarded by some Jamaicans as a fine thing when served in tea, how the hibiscus is called shoe black for it will clean a dirty school slate, and how chew sticks keeps teeth white; how the buzzard is called John Crow and about the dupies (ghosts) at Rose Hall.

He guided me through the native market in Montego Bay. It was Saturday morning and crammed with people selling ropes of tobacco, wet sugar, castor oil by the pint, callalu for pepperpot soup, porter for the thirsty, smelly, sweet manjack fruit.

The scene reminded me of the wonderful Jamaican folk song, Linstead Market, which tells about a country woman who took her ackee to market but not a "quatty wuth" (penny hapenny worth) would sell. Everybody looked at the ackees, felt and pinched them, but did not buy. At night she had to climb back up the mountain and face the hungry "pickney" (children).

Folk Songs

I became interested in the folk songs, which by the way, are not calypso. Some of them have been turned into calypso for tourist consumption. But most are much more beautiful.

Brown helped me find a wonderful folk song record of them in Kingston. It's put out by the Argo Record Company Limited of London and Edric Connor, who has a haunting voice of great beauty, sings the lyrics.

The songs were collected and arranged by Tom Murray and there's an 8-shilling booklet of them published by the Oxford Press. With this booklet you can interpret the record pretty well.

These are the songs sung at Moonshine Darlin's and Dinkies (9th night after a funeral).

Guineps in Fern Gully

Some other high points of the trip — a wonderful morning drive through Fern Gully eating guineps along the way (a fruit with a big pit which Brown said was all the sweeter if picked from that side of the tree which had the morning sun), a trip through the sugar plant at Richmond Llandovery estates where a very courteous brown boy took me up tiny steps, down funny little runways, in and around great vats boiling with molasses and sugar, where there were probably a hundred or more black persons and I the only white, but where I was treated, as always, with the greatest respect.

I saw a copra factory in operation, rode through Bamboo Arch, even toured a native shoe factory and smelled the goat hides in the acid baths.

Tale of Montego Bay

At Montego Bay I stayed at the Casa Blanca, a wonderful old hotel where Charlotte (Frenchy) Adams does a marvelous job as social hostess.

My bedroom at the Casa Blanca had a balcony out over the blue, blue bay. And one night at sunset a little boat came silently by.

Two little brown boys called up, again in that soft way, almost as if they hated to break the spell of the beauty all around. They'd dive for coins if I threw them down.

As my shillings floated into the water I noticed that only one of the lads went after them. The second little fellow had only a rag across his middle, not enough to cover him for a dive overboard.

My money gave out quickly and I said I was sorry.

ON JAMAICAN VACATION: The Duke of Sutherland, who arrived in Jamaica with his Duchess on the "Caronia," enjoys a quiet chat on the veranda of the Myrtle Bank Hotel. With him is an old friend, Assistant Superintendent Howells of the Jamaica Constabulary.

"Oh, that's all right mun," they said cheerfully.

Paradise Road and Love Lane, a deep blue sea, a setting sun, serenity and peace and two little brown boys.

Into the Mountains

The orchestra at the Casa Blanca was simply wonderful; what a plaintive voice the soloist had. There was a full moon overhead, the fragrance of ginger lilies in the patio and the sea moving softly below.

No wonder I went to bed at three and was up again at six. This was not a place to be lost during sleep.

From Montego Bay I went to Mandeville, the mountain

Brazilian Court Hotel

PALM BEACH at its LOVELIEST

for the most gracious living "under the sun,"

the beautiful Brazilian Court Hotel is the answer to all of one's needs. The spacious patios, the newly redecorated Cloister Lounge and bar, the lovely dining loggia and most of all the atmosphere of serenity all are factors that contribute toward a perfect vacation. Centrally situated, close to ocean, lake, clubs and shops. 150 rooms, singly or en suite; steam heat throughout. Noted for its accessibility, distinctive charm, renowned clientele and moderate tariff. Under the personal direction of Elliott F. Bishop.

JAMAICAN FASHIONS FOR "CARONIA" GUESTS: Displaying a Jamaican made linen dress trimmed with delicate cut-work embroidery is pretty Normadelle DeLisser, one of the models who took part in a special luncheon Fashion Parade at the Myrtle Bank Hotel, arranged in honor of cruise guests who arrived on the "Caronia."

resort, where I met some fascinating folk from the bauxite plant, the designer Rhoda Jackson, a charming Jamaican girl from the Gleaner and of course my hosts, the owner and manager of the Manchester House.

And then I was back in Kingston, or rather at Constant Spring just outside the city, with the mountain breeze sweeping over the Manor House.

A True Story

I'll have to tell you a story. It was night at Manor House and dinner was being served in the great open (but roofed) dining room. Outside the rain was pouring down steadily in the inky blackness. Only candles burned in the room and all was hushed and quiet. The newlywed couple nearby were speaking softly. The waiters were tiptoeing, putting each knife and fork silently on the trays. Out in the blackness a little dog started barking. He barked and barked until suddenly from the bar came an ear-splitting voice, rasping, "Come here you bitch, come here you bitch!"

That was wonderful Capt. R.S.C. Rutty, Manor House owner and last of Jamaica's famous plantocracy.

Dignity and Beauty

In Jamaica a man is recognized pretty much for what he is and for what he accomplishes. And this I think accounts in large part for the great dignity of the Jamaican people.

The Hon. Donald Sangster, MHR, expressed it this way when I met him, "Jamaica is a land that has evolved a civilization that has settled some of the problems confronting mankind."

It is a land without inhibitions, a land of beauty, of dignity and happiness.

And so it was that I wept when the great plane circled the bejeweled Kingston harbor and headed for home in a golden sky flecked with white cotton clouds. We relieve you of many burdens in making your dollars grow . . .

Tips on What's Tops at the Thops

JAMISON GOLFERS. Attractively tailored active sports dresses in sleeveless and short sleeved versions by this famous name in classic sportswear. Woven cottons, many of them imported, are done in stripes, plaids, checks and solid color shirtmakers with the much loved convertible neckline. For variety, one sleeveless stripe is in a scoop neck. Norman's, 306 Clematis Street, West Palm Beach.

SCOTCH KILTIE TONGUE LOAFER. A copy of an imported sports shoe introduced for the first time in this country. Loafer in perforated brogue with the fit of an oxford for spectator comfort. Russet, white buck, and black calf. Schur, 312 Worth Avenue.

THE SOFT LOOK in stitched pleated shorts in light blue, lilac, or pink wool jersey. Bermuda length, they give the effect of a short dress. Worn with a sleeveless, notched collar blouse with two flapped pockets on each side. Saks Fifth Avenue, 302 Worth Avenue.

A NEW DEPARTURE for Anne Fogarty who is so well known for her bourfant line: the first sheath dress she has designed, done in the palest pastels for the completely feminine look which is a mark of everything she creates. Anthony's, 312 Clematis Street, West Palm Beach.

TINA LESER does a one-piece cotton bathing suit in an allover embroidered clover design which is also appliqued along the top of the halter suit. Pink or yellow on a white background. Bonwit Teller, 301 Worth Avenue.

A BEACH TOWEL with a James Thurber feeling. Huge towel in a chatreuse green with a highly amusing figure wearing a rhinestone ring. The rhinestone is actually embedded in the soft texture of the towel. Very much of a conversation piece. Belk's, 305 Clematis Street, West Palm Beach.

PINK CHECKED GINGHAM in a bathing suit, charmingly feminine long sleeved blouse, and full skirt. The pieces may be worn together or separately, and are all trimmed in delicate lace for an appealing effect on the beach or at lunch. George and Mary's, 107 North County Road.

A DAYTIME COTTON for the races or any afternoon sports occasion when you want to look your prettiest. Delicate floral print in aqua or red on a white background done in a torso line with skirt highlighted with two pockets from white unpressed pleats fall to the hemline. Hattie Carnegie, 318 Worth Avenue.

LIBERTY LAWNS beautifully detailed with tiny tucks, dyed-to-match Val lace, stitched pleated skirts, and exquisite work-manship to make them worthy of particular notice from the crowd. Several with their matching parasols to protect you from the sun. Martha, 230 Worth Avenue.

A RIVIERA LOOKING striped hand knit dress with accompanying jacket. Done by Rodier, it is in red and white with a square neckline. Ruth Hilliard, 245 Worth Avenue.

A KNITTED WHITE WOOL shaped at the waist and completely lined in silk. An Oleg Cassini design, the spectator frock has three quarter sleeves and a striking rolled red and white knitted collar set in a V neckline. Ruth Chagnon, 325 Worth Avenue.

ATTRACTIVE BEACH JACKET with matching swim trunks in a woven design in grey with black, light blue with navy, beige with brown, and white with black. A distinctive import from France, its jacket lining of light weight terry cloth makes it doubly comfortable. Sulka's, 305 Worth Avenue.

FINE RIBBED IMPORTED SHETLAND waist length cardigan which is semi fitted with short sleeves and rhinestone button fastenings. Perfect with all spectator frocks. Navy, white, pink, a lovely light blue, and black. Mary Stuart, 218-B Worth Avenue.

TWO SHADES OF GREY with a lovely rose running through in a woolen slack with its matching cashmere cardigan and slip on. Other cooler day fashions include a wide selection of Italian sweaters, and excellently tailored woolen shorts. Henri Bendel, 239 South County Road.

YOUR PLACE IN THE SUN will be more comfortable and you will be more attractive with the help of Elizabeth Arden Sun Products. Sunpruf Cream prevents burning; Sun Bloc is proof against both tanning and burning; 8-Hour Cream will come to the rescue if you've already burned; and Arden sun oils will help you tan beautifully. Elizabeth Arden Salon, 2 Via Parigi.

Take the crowd's eye. Black straw cloth flats with pompoms of straw roses with a charming bee hovering over. Designed by Bill Kornhauser who says his Capezios are the most unusual in the country. Kornhauser Shoe Salon, 311 Worth Avenue.

ATTACHED CINCH BELTS in girls' Jamaica length shorts and two-piece sports dresses make for a grown-up look that pleases daughters. The attached belts which also make one less thing for mother to find are a feature of So-Fine children's wear in denims and Bates fabrics which require little ironing. Dresses are in prints and plain colors with linen Peter Pan collars. Pink-N-Blue Children's Shoppe, 272 Sunrise Avenue.

A DON HOPER SEPARATE in a moss green Moygashel linen full skirt with front and back panel; to be worn with a white dotted shantung blouse in the same shade with set-in high cowl collar. There is also a skirt in the shantung for a little more dressed up look. Winona Hunt, 4 Via Mizner.

white sharkskin sleeveless blouse trimmed in a red and royal blue, embroidered motif with the same design carrying through to matching shorts. The costume also includes a pleated, button-down-the-front skirt easy to slip on over the shorts. Beatrice Morgan, 235 Worth Avenue.

A beautifully styled Erinore Irish linen spectator frock softened with a bit of floating chiffon at the left pocket. Simple in design, this Vera Stewart from her Bon Voyage collection depends on line and fabric for its striking effect. In toast, navy, aqua, and geranium red at GEORGE AND MARY'S, 107 NORTH COUNTY ROAD.

A silk taffeta ball gown by Goethe which features a side draped skirt with separate flying panels. The strapless bodice is pleated, and the gown shades from a lighter to a true Dior blue. McDONALDS, 116 NORTH COUNTY ROAD.

A David Crystal Tootal linen sheath with the wide cavalier collar so popular this season. The large buttons are pearl, and the tailoring detail of the dress gives it importance for luncheons and other daytime occasions. In ice blue, pink, white, and black at JONAS, 189 BRADLEY PLACE.

The magic name of B. H. Wragge in a dress with a very feminine look. Moygashel linen in Spindrift white with just the right touch of feminine fashion flavor in the embroidered bead neckline. Also in Baruna blue, pink champagne, Parma violet, wilderness tan, or Barbados navy. RUTH CHAGNON, 325 WORTH AVENUE.

Palm Beach cloth in a handsomely tailored sports jacket and color coordinated slacks. This informal two-button jacket is definitely a part of the Palm Beach scene for spectator sports. Shoes in brown and white, or black and white, are by Florsheim. ANTHONY AND SONS, 312 CLEMATIS STREET, WEST PALM BEACH.

A nautical theme in all-over patterned pedal pushers with loose zippered jacket. Italian cowl neckline and wide turned-back cuffs carry out the flag design of the below-the-knee pedal pushers. Available at BELK'S, 305 CLEMATIS STREET, WEST PALM BEACH. (Photo by John Grigg).

PALM BEACH LIFE

The OLD GUARD SOCIETY > of Palm Beach Golfers

HE OLD GUARD SOCIETY of Palm Beach Golfers began its 37th year in the resort this season with a fine list of golf and bridge tournaments scheduled to enhance its members' leisure hours.

One of Palm Beach's oldest organizations, the club dates back to the days of the Royal Poinciana Hotel, where a group of congenial golfers met each evening to re-play the day's match.

Visitors, who saw the group at their accustomed chairs on the hotel's wide west veranda, gave them the name "Old Guard."

To promote the best interest of golf and good fellowship among the golfers of Palm Beach, Mr. J. Clarence Davies invited a number of this group to a dinner. They met again soon after—March 7, 1918—aboard Mr. Walter C. Witherbee's yacht "Silouan" and organized the golfing society.

The founding fathers for the Old Guard and its first board of governors: Mr. Walter Fairbanks, Mr. Louis M. Stumer, Mr. Wilmot H. Smith, Mr. Charles S. Brackett, Mr. Walter J. Travis, Mr. J. Ernest Smith, Mr. H. B. McClellan, Mr. A. F. Southerland, Mr. Walter C. Witherbee, Mr. A. F. Huston, Mr. J. Clarence Davies and Mr. John Shepard, Jr.

Past presidents and the years they served were Mr. Walter J. Travis, 1919-1920; Mr. J. Ernest Smith, 1921; Mr. Fred C. Van Dusen, 1922-1923; Mr. Albert M. Banker, 1924-1925-1928; Mr. William F. Bode, 1926-1927; Mr. Bernard H. Kroger, 1929-1934; Mr. George H. Keim, 1935; Mr. Ellsworth C. Warner, 1936-1937; Mr. Blaine Zuver, 1938-1939; Mr. Stuart G. Rosson, 1940; Mr. Hugh L. Willoughby, Jr., 1941-1942; Mr. Charles Francis Coe, 1943; Mr. Clinton S. Dow, 1944; Mr. Ruby R. Vale, 1945; Mr. Henry J. Hinde, 1946; Mr. John Shepard, Jr., 1947; Mr. Marvin Hughitt, 1948; Mr. L. L. Stephens, 1949; Mr. William Langford, 1950; Mr. Paul G. Brown, 1951; Mr. Robert H. Sanderson, 1952; Mr. Alanson C. Deuel, 1953.

The first annual Old Guard dinner was held at the Poinciana Grill Room, February 21, 1919, with thirty-seven attending the affair. The club began competitive golf events February 25, 1920.

The Old Guard in 1921 was provided with its permanent clubrooms, which it still occupies over the Palm Beach Golf Club, through the co-operation of the Florida East Coast Hotel Company and the company's Executive Vice-President, the late Mr. Henry Ellsworth Bemis.

FEBRUARY 4, 1955

The club membership has been limited to one hundred active members and fifty associate members, with honorary membership conferred on eleven men.

Four of the club's prominent members died before or during the early part of the season.

Tthey were Major Barclay H. Warburton, former mayor of Palm Beach; Alanson C. Deuel, John S. Garvan and John Cardel.

New members added were Mr. C. H. Bliss, Mr. Raymond C. Alley, Mr. Glen Case, Mr. Paul Dunkle, Capt. Frederick Holmes, Mr. Bruce Jones, Mr. Russell McIntosh, Mr. Edward F. Reddy, and Mr. H. B. Smith.

Ten major golf tournaments and five bridge tournaments have been scheduled for this season. The bridge tourneys will be held once in January, twice each in February and March, with the exact dates to be set by the bridge committee.

In the 1954 Bridge Tourament, high score for the season went to Mr. Lumen O. Peck, with Mr. Clarence Hall second.

In the first tournament last year, Mr. George Ellis was first, Mr. B. C. Thompson second, and Mr. Lumen O. Peck third. Mr. Mark Magnuson won the February 4, tournament with Mr. Paul Kneeland, second, and Mr. Peck third; the February 18 tournament was won by Mr. Hall, with Mr. Charles B. Grady, second and Mr. William E. Fitzgerald and Mr. Archibald McNeil, tied for third place.

Tournaments were held in March and April with Mr. Fitzgerald winning the March 11 event. Mr. Ward Ames was second and Mr. Alanson C. Deuel, third. Mr. Peck won the April affair, with Mr. Gordon Taylor the runner-up, and Mr. L. S. Wescoat.

The Jack McDevitt memorial bridge trophy was won by Mr. Peck with Mr. Fitzgerald runner-up.

Two of the golf events have been held; the Handicap Match Play Tournament and the Handicap Foursome Tournament. The Ringer affair, which lasts to April 1, started January 1.

Mr. Paul Cushman came out on top of a strong 13-man field to win the Handicap Match Play tourney, which was the resort's first tournament.

The veteran Palm Beach amateur carded a neat 73—which was matched by his finals opponent, Mr. Fred S. Willard—to win by a 2 and 1 score.

During the four days of match play, Mr. Cushman defeated Mr. Rosser Huff, Mr. H. S. Patton and Mr. J. Y. Arnold to reach the finals. Mr. Willard downed Mr. M. E. Rinker, Mr. James Sturrock, and Mr. A. W. Boettcher, on his way to the final 18-holes.

The Seniors Tournament, which is divided into two divisions, the 55 to 65 age group, and the 65 and over section, is slated for February 2. Low net and low gross awards will be made in both divisions.

Defending champions in the younger group are Mr. J. Raymond Ferguson and Mr. Augustin S. Hardart, with Mr. John Ryan, and Mr. Carl B. Tuttle in the "oldsters" division.

The Old Guard's increasingly popular Member-Guest Tournament will begin two days later, followed by the putting championship, on February 28. The club's championship tourney will be held on February 21-26, with eight divisions for awards.

March 1-5 will mark another one of the society's popular events—the Invitation Mixed Foursome Tournament—won last season by Mr. and Mrs. John Cushman. A best Ball Handicap event on March 15 and a Kicker's tourney on March 24 will winup the slate for the season.

Special awards for the 1954 season were: the president's cup and the J. Clarence Davies Medal won last year by Mr. Charles Wertman, with the Warner Trophy for the club championship going to Mr. Fred S. Willard. The Breakers Hotel Trophy was awarded to Mr. Gilbert G. Drake, and the Clinton S. Dow memorial trophy went to Mr. Harry D. Nelson. The Hu Woodward memorial trophy was won by Mr. J. R. Ferguson.

Mr. John Cushman will serve as the president for the coming year, with Mr. James Ballentine, vice-president, Mr. James Y. Arnold, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Albert Drake is the immediate past president.

Besides the present officers, and the immediate past president, others serving on the society's board of governors are for 1955 Mr. Vincent S. Mulford, Mr. Paul G. Cushman, Mr. Joseph A. Bower, Mr. Earl A. Ross; for 1956, Mr. John H. Noble, Mr. Adolph G. Storz, Mr. Lumen O. Peck, and Mr. J. Clyde Hooker; for 1957, Mr. Paul A. Bennett, Mr. Hal C. Rich, Mr. Russell P. Taber, and Mr. James D. Sturrock. Mr. Shelby A. Greer serves as team captain, and Mr. Stafford B. Beach, as assistant secretary.

The executive committee is Mr. Albert B. Drake, chairman; Mr. Paul G. Cushman, vice chairman; Mr. Adolph G. Storz, Mr. Joseph A. Bower and Mr. Earl A. Ross.

Mr. Paul G. Cushman serves as chairman of the house committee, with Mr. Hal C. Rich, vice chairman, Mr. Joseph A. Bower, Mr. John P. Butler, Mr. Norman C. Schmidt, and Mr. William MacNeill.

Mr. Lumen O. Peck heads the membership committee, with Dr. Lloyd J. Netto, vice chairman, and Mr. Paul A. Bennett, Mr. James D. Sturrock and Mr. John H. Noble.

The golf committee chairman is Mr. James D. Sturrock, vice chairman, Paul G. Cushman, with others serving on the group, Mr. Paul A. Bennett, Mr. Marshall E. Rinker, Mr. Earl A. Ross and Mr. Gilbert G. Drake. Mr. Shelby Greer is ex officio member.

Mr. Earl A. Ross is chairman of the nominating committee, with John H. Noble, vice chairman, Mr. Adolph G. Storz, Mr. Shelby Greer and Mr. Ruby R. Vale.

The card committee is Mr. Joseph A. Bower, chairman, Mr. Vincent S. Mulford, vice chairman, Mr. Ward Ames, Mr. Robert H. Sanderson, Mr. Walter Beinecke and Mr. Archibald McNeil, Jr.

Mr. Adolph G. Storz serves as chairman of the entertainment committee, with Rosser A. Huff, vice chairman, Mr. Hal C. Rich, Mr. Robert H. Sanderson, Mr. Daniel D. Scott and William MacNeill.

The flower committee is headed by Mr. James D. Sturrock, with Dr. Lloyd J. Netto, vice chairman, and Mr. William MacNeill, Dr. Harold W. Corya and Mr. A. H. Sarver.

Design for Living: Florida Fashion IN WHICH ONE MOVES CLOUDWARD

IN A LAND where very high buildings are non persona grata, penthouses are something of a rarity. But in Palm Beach a new trend is noted in several late houses that reflects a love for living on a higher level. From the standpoint of view, privacy and comfort there's nothing quite like it, chorus those whose houses are constructed with living areas on the second floor.

Among them are found Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Schwab, now spending their first full season in their new Gulf Stream Road home, completed last Spring; Mrs. Jean Craig and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith, who occupy respectively new residences on the northwest and southwest corners of King's Road and South Ocean Boulevard.

Since days when the late Addison Mizner transformed the then young Palm Beach into a land of Spanish palaces, architectural styles have fluctuated until today almost anything can be found here. However, Spanish, Colonial or modern . . . chateau, bungalow or ranchhouse . . . there's one common denominator . . . that of striving towards the best design for comfortable living today.

Belford Shoumate, architect for the three houses shown here, is noted for the way he never hesitates to mix his types to achieve an effect which either he or his client especially desires. The Schwab residence he describes as Scandinavian modern, a compact functional, comparatively small, house built of rough sawn cypress clapboards, painted

Four Seasons, name of the Craig house, pays tribute to its livability at all times of the year. Small figures, sculptured to represent the seasons, top the entryway at the south end of the second floor, reached by a curving stairway. The architect terms the design a blending of Basque and French, the whole carried out in a manner designed for tropical living. Across the ground floor and facing seaward is a screened loggia, complete with barbecue and other facilities for entertaining. Above it extends a porch extending the width of the house. Living-room, dining-room and kitchen, three bedrooms with baths make up the second floor.

Mrs. Jeanne Craig's house on South Ocean Boulevard and northwest corner of King's Road.

The Schwab house rises gradually. On the ground floor, the garage is entered directly from Gulf Stream Road, while at the rear off the garden is a room and bath that can be used either for servants or extra guests. Five feet up, there is a second level. Here is to be found the real heart of the home, the living-room, dining-room, kitchen and breakfast nook, master bedroom and the terrace along both the South and East. A stairway leads up four feet to a gallery along the West. This forms a guest suite with two rooms and baths, with both the north and south ends being featured by cantilevered bay windows.

In both decoration and furnishing, in which Mrs. Schwab worked with W. S. Sloane, both the modern and traditional are combined.

Strikingly individual in architectural detail on the outside, both of the houses on the King's Road ocean front follow a general master plan, with garage, servants' rooms and recreational areas on the ground floor, while the second comprises the real home.

definitely British Colonial. In keeping with its name its stuccoed walls are a pale coral in contrast to the faint sage green of Four Seasons, the hues of both being accented with white trim. An interesting innovation is found in the small sundeck on the second floor level, just to the right of the big entrance door. Here privacy is preserved by the use of jalousies hinged at the bottom so that they can be tilted to allow for more sun.

The ocean views from the upper verandas are literally out of this world, the breezes such that one almost wonders why the houses are air-conditioned. All three are, as well, centrally heated. So come heat, or cold, they maintain their place among designs for living—Florida fashion.

This interesting quartet was photographed at the party in Delray Beach at which Mr. and Mrs. Harold Furstenau announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Barrons Furstenau, to Mr. Robert Sawbridge McCormick, of Menominee, Michigan. Mrs. Furstenau is shown on the couch with her daughter, while the latter's fiance poses beside Mr. Furstenau. The Furstenau's Northern home is in Ludington, Michigan.

MONG RECENT INTERESTING visitors to Palm Beach were Lord and Lady Malcolm Douglas-Hamilton, who were guests of Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, at "Casa Rosada del Lago" for a few days. During their stay in the resort their hostess gave a tea and cocktail party in their honor. Mr. Arthur Graham Glasgow also gave a small dinner party for them at his home on Middle Read.

Eunice Lady Oakes of Nassau spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Foskett at their home on Clarke Avenue before going to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Foskett gave two small dinner parties in her honor, and Mr. and Mrs. Olof Nelson Tevander also gave a dinner for her.

HAT A BRILLIANT FEATHER IN MIAMI'S CAP was the courtly Debutante Ball held at the Surf Club to start the Winter Season!... The first affair of its kind in our part of the country, its singular success has proclaimed it an annual event...

Credit for introducing the charming custom here, of formally presenting to society, young ladies of our top-bracket families (AND spotlighting Miami's social maturity!) goes to the Debutante Committee of forty year-'round residents and winter visitors who sponsored the ball... And to the board of managers consisting of Mrs. Lino Sertel, Mrs. Jefferson Wynne, Mrs. Leslie Buswell, F. Lowry Wall, Alfred I. Barton and Charles F. Kettering, who actually staged it.

The ball room...with its handsome chalk-white wall urns holding formal bouquets of white roses and gladioli interspersed with silver leaves, and white satin ribbons enclosing the dance floor...looked like a beautifully-done-up gift!... There, resembling young Goddesses of Beauty who might have emerged from the white marble temple depicted in the mural before which they stood, the ten debutantes in exquisite white bouffant dresses (with the exception of Marjorie Hunt's, which was an equally lovely sheath), carrying traditional old fashioned nosegays, received the guests, with Calvin P. Bentley and F. Lowry Wall.

These are the debs, pictured above: STEFANIE LAPE ZACHAR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Homer Zachar, Miami (an excellent horsewoman, Stefanie has her own hunters with her at Mills College, Oakland, Calif.) ... VIRGINIA BISHOP WEED, daughter of the Robert Law Weeds of Coconut Grove, a student of Sweet Briar, and an accomplished singer and pianist, plans to study in Europe... MARY MUIR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whalley Muir, also of Cocoanut Grove (her mother is the author of "Miami U.S.A.") ... CARY LATIMER, destined to be the glamour deb of the crop, studies art at Finch (her holidays were taken up with dancing at the New York Infirmary Cotillion, the Grosvenor Ball and the Debutante Assembly) ... DIANE CAROLL JONES, daughter of Mrs. Lowell Oakes, Jr. and Whipple Van Ness Jones, began her "coming out" last June at a party in St. Louis, given by her grandmother, Mrs. Richard McCulloch (her mother will have a party for her at the St. Regis in New York, before she returns to classes at Briarcliff) ... MARJORIE HUNT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan C. Hunt of Miami Beach and Hyannis, Cape Cod, Mass., is attending Parsons School of Design in New York . . . TONI TERRY HILLS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hills of Miami and Detroit, studies at Katherine Gibbs School in Boston (probably with an eye to following in the footsteps of her eminent journalist father.) ... HELEN UPSON BUR-KETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burkett, Jr. of Miami and Greenwich, Conn., a student of Sweet Briar, will represent the Biscayne Chapter of the D.A.R. come the next Continental Congress . . . Susan Balfe, daughter of the Alex Balfes of Miami, goes to the University of Miami and is a talented pianist and organist ... DIANE BAKER, daughter of the Charles A. Bakers of Coconut Grove, studies at Denison College in Granville, Ohio (her well-traveled father authored Gentlemen's Companion, and other books on gastronomy.

After smiling their prettiest and shaking hands for two hours, the debs went into dinner, where each found at her place a token of the memorable occasion... an engraved gold heart, with a key attached... It was 10:30 when the presentation took place... as each deb appeared on a lighted dais and curtised to the guests. She then walked the length of the ball room and curtised to the three feminine members of the board of managers, who momentarily represented the Committee as a whole.

In the time-honored manner, the orchestra struck up the "Debutante Waltz" and each deb took a brief whirl around the dance floor with her father... to the enthusiastic applause of guests in silks, satins, fabulous jewels and orchids, who had gathered around the beribboned floor. (With a pause in the music you could hear the swishing of ball gowns... attempting a better vantage point)... As soon as the debs had danced with each of their two escorts, the ribbons were cut and the ball was officially on.

Each of the Committee members had a table of twelve ... The Stefan Zachars' guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Gardner (he's president of Eastern Air Lines); Mrs. George Halman (part owner of the exclusive Sea View Hotel on the beach at Surfside); Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur LeRoy-Morrison; the Jackson Hall Lewises; Mr. and Mrs. Recker, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis G. Van de Vere. The F. Lowry Walls entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook; Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ehrhart; the W. W. Ehrharts; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smathers, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams... At another table hosted by Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leslie Buswell were: The J. Lawrence Carolls; Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cook; Arthur Vining Davis; Charles Hahn; Charles A. Mills, and Miss Evelyn Mitchell.

A memento of appreciation—an 18th Century silver cup—was presented by the debs to the Debutante Committee and members of the Board... with the ten names of the young ladies who "came out" that night engraved on it.

Everyone agreed that it was the most dramatically beautiful ball Miami has ever seen... And well it might be! ... For it was Miami's debut also... in having its first ball for the daughters of its representative families to make their bow to society...

Among the usual stream of VIP's was Number Two man of our nation—redundantly, Vice President Richard Nixon—who flew in for a few days' rest before the opening of Congress... And incidentally to root for his alma mater, Duke, at the Orange Bowl game. The Leon Swirbuls (he's co-founder and president of Grummann Aircraft Engineering Corp.) had a small luncheon party for him on the terrace of the Surf Club, where you see nothing but surf for endless miles... Guests included Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hall (Mr. Hall is National Republican Committee Chairman), and Countess Juliana Fesoni. (The Halls and the Summerfields were guests in the Surf Apartments during their brief stay here.)

Where but in Florida, could you dance under the stars—comfortably, that is!—on New Year's Eve? They did just that at the Indian Creek Club, which has the most superb setting of all in these parts. Members who own and live in those of the nearby homes on the 183-acre club grounds (a la Westchester Country Club style) strolled over for the gala celebration.

Angelic strains from a harp played by Geraldine Harrold...and a silver and blue Christmas tree...greeted the guests in the lobby. The corridor and stairway leading up to the patio were lined with silver evergreens sprouting balloons on every stem!...We thought we were back in Spain—in charming Sevilla—when we came to the Spanish patio enclosed by grilled windows and arched loggias (where more balloon-plants decorated the corners of the dance floor ... with balloons strung all the way across it) ... There you have a magnificent view out over Indian Creek and Biscayne Bay... and down a few steps you see the nicely-landscaped swimming pool ...

On those rare cool nights, parties are held in the Great Hall off the patio—before a roaring fire in the huge fireplace, Mr. Ralph Shaw, the club's manager, told us...And when there's capacity attendance, the Music Room and Card Room are opened into the Great Hall for added space.

President of the Indian Creek Country Club and Chairman of the Board is J. Simpson Dean (he's affiliated with DuPont and Co.), Vice President is Norman Woolworth (no need for identification here!), and the Treasurer is James A. Dixon.

The largest party there hailing the New Year was given by the Samuel Beckers, some of whose guests were: the Ralph Carters; Mrs. George Davis; Mr. and Mrs. William Sullivan; the Holmans; Mrs. Holman, Sr., and Mrs. Owen Uridge... Seen in the oyster bar were the James Bressils and their guests: Mr. and Mrs. M. Brown; the James Coxes; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Corcoran, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Field... Dancing to Larry Siry's excellent music (the club's regular band) we saw; Mr. and Mrs. William P. Crowe; Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Tribble; and the Edward Bradleys. At a

That froth and volatility are not the only facets of cosmopolitan Miami's intriguing personality is evidenced in the exclusive Committee of One Hundred Club (for men only) situated on Belle Isle, on Biscayne Bay...

Older than the Bath or Surf Clubs, the Committee of One Hundred (so like the fine, old Cosmos Club of Washington, D.C.), composed of top industrialists, professional men and scientists of our country (and parts of Canada) was originated by pioneering Miami Beachite, the late Carl Fisher... For the purpose of bringing together men devoted to civic betterment. Through the years, many thousands of dollars have been raised by the Committee annually for the benefit of St. Francis Hospital, through "The Annual Charity Ball"...and it was the Committee's idea to decorate the exterior of the homes here during the Christmas season... And the genius of Committee member Leslie Buswell is responsible for the Annual Christmas Festival, wherein members' gavly-decorated, brightly-lighted boats would sail up and down Miami Beach Front and Indian Creek...to the delight of the crowd of winter visitors who would gather annually to see them...and to hear the carols carried by amplifier across the water!

Dr. Clayton Sedgwick, author and world-traveler, was the Founding President . . . In the Committee of One Hundred's early existence, meetings were held monthly in members' homes, where public-spirited purposes were planned and put into action. Now the club meets every Tuesday in a clubhouse that has a library, lounge and an auditorium that seats more than 300 (the Committee is no longer a literal Committee of One Hundred!)

There you'll meet such men as Dr. John Oliver La Gorce (Associate Editor of National Geographic Magazine), Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Committee of One Hundred, and his assistants on the Board: George G. Foster (New York); Frank Gannett (Rochester); Dr. J. Irving Holcomb, of Indianapolis; Mark C. Honeywell (Wabash, Ind.); Col. Frank Katzentine and Hugh Larrick, of Miami Beach; George Mead (Wisconsin Rapids); Fred B. Snite (Chicago); Andrew Sordoni (Wilkes-Barre, Pa.); and William Tradash, of Chicago and Miami Beach . . . And, of course, Charles Kettering, the President!... At a "social hour" (that delightful time that follows the interesting programs... where refreshments are non-alcoholic) you may see Arthur Vining Davis (chairman of the board of the Aluminum Company of America); James Rand, president of Remington Rand...General Scott (reputedly the oldest living West Point graduate) ... McGregor Smith, chairman of the board of the Florida Power and Light Co.... Sebastian Kresge (who owns all those stores we frequent at one time or another) or Newton Skillman of Golden Beach (Detroit bearing manufacturer) ... And scores of others—all tops in their own fields...

Leonard C. Roy, the Committee's Executive Director (in his second year in that capacity) is assisted on ladies' nights by his gracious wife...On Mr. Roy's superlative program of speakers scheduled for 1955, Admiral Arthur Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be guest speaker at the Southern Dinner, held, as usual, at the Surf Club... Louis Sibley will give an illustrated lecture on "The Universe of Palomar"...and Dr. Hubert N. Alyea, Associate Professor of Chemistry of Princeton University, who has excited many audiences (including the brilliant members of Washington's Cosmos Club) with his address on: "Atomic Energy: Weapon for Peace"...

But don't get the idea that all is "long-hair" at the Committee of One Hundred!...On their annual "play day" they don sport shirts and slacks, commodore's caps, and, carrying canes, they take off for a boat ride to Ft. Lauderdale, or some such nearby port...For fun and frivolity... And real relaxation...

And now to the "Soiree Symphonique"...

Many Miamians are eagerly anticipating the Goya Ball, to be given at La Coquille, February 18, by the American Friends of Spain — a non-profit non-political organization formed for the purpose of strengthening the bonds of friendship between the two countries. Promising to be one of the most elegant affairs seen in many a moon, the decor of the ballroom will be strictly Goya — with priceless paintings and tapestries by that famous Spanish artist, adorning the ballroom walls . . . Spanish Ambassador to the U.S. Conde de Motrico and his beautiful, chic Condesa, will be among the diplomats from Washington attending . . . along with prominent socialites from there and New York. While there are some surprises in store, there will be entertainment by the finest dancers imported from Spain. Chairman of the Goya Ball is charming, good-looking Mrs. Julius Noyes (who comes from Madrid, originally and whose handsome son, Julio, is an artist himself, on the guitar, and as a singer of Spain's entrancing flamenco songs). Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, is Co-Chairman. The Ball is given for the benefit of the Spanish Cancer Society, in Madrid.

Contemporary American Painting

AT THE

Society of the Four Arts

RT AND SOCIAL INTEREST blended at the second preview tea of the season at the Society of the Four Arts when the "Contemporary American Painting" show went on display to receive high critical acclaim from the large crowd gathered for the occasion.

Assembled by Mr. Allan McNab, art adviser for the art committee, the show provided a highly colorful and dramatic background for the large party that dropped in for the preview. Following the exhibition here, which lasted through January 16, the collection has gone on to Miami to be seen at the Lowe Gallery, where Mr. McNab is director. Mrs. Harold Fowler, art chairman, was out of the city at the time of the preview, so Mr. Marion Sims Wyeth, president, and Mrs. Wyeth again served as official hosts.

Shown at the preview tea was a group including Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, wife of the president and official hostess for the afternoon. Left to right, Mrs. Norman Field, Mrs. George S. Rasmussen, Mrs. Wyeth and Mrs. George Henri Boutet.

A number of America's finest contemporary artists were represented in the exhibition, chosen by Mr. McNab as a cross-section of what is actually going on in American art today. Top works by top artists, representative of every modern trend, was his expressed purpose. Art connoisseurs in the crowd agreed that he had succeeded well.

Included were such noted abstract and non-objective painters as Stuart Davis, Morris Graves, I. Rice Pereira, Matta, Hedda Sterne, Karl Zerbe, Max Weber. Charles Sheeler was represented by "Canyons," one of his finest precisionist studies of masses against the sky; Georgia O'Keefe by a characteristic and very beautiful "Cross by the Sea"; Balcomb Greene by "Tragic Actor" that verged on the abstract.

Attesting to the superbly fine painting technique to be found today in America were oils by such well knowns as Edward Hopper, Loren McIver, Kay Sage, Yves Tanguy, George Tooker, Robert Vickery, Andrew Wyeth, Carlyle Brown, Priscilla Roberts, Leonid. Most representative of the trend towards social consciousness was the large oil, "Vanity Fair" by Henry Koerner.

Something for every taste, from the strictly representational to the most non-objective, all agreed. Everyone could find some work of interest, and the way in which spectators really looked at the exhibition, rather than spending all their time around the tea tables, bore witness to the general appeal of the show.

Among well known local artists making their first Four Arts appearance at this time were Mr. Channing Hare and Mr. Hopkins Hensel, recently returned after a Summer and Fall in Ogonquit, Maine and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Gloeckner, visitors at the Villas were among others from the art world. Mrs. Gloeckner is editor for the Hyperion Press, for which her husband is publisher. In professional circles she is known as Aimee Crane. Hyperion Press, devoted to art publications, now has its headquarters in Milan, Italy, and the Gloeckners are on an American vacation.

At the tea tables that afternoon were Mrs. Charles R. Wilson, Mrs. William Lee McKim, Mrs. Timothy Killern, Jr., Mrs. Francis E. Green, Mrs. Page Hufty, Mrs. James A. dePeyster, Mrs. Edward U. Roddy, Jr., Mrs. Lloyd J. Netto, Mrs. Duggett Benson, Mrs. Paul Peter Prudden, Jr., Mrs. George C. Van Dusen.

With the advancing season, an exceptionally large and record audience of members and guests was on hand for the third show of the season, the sensational Van Gogh Exhibition, presented from the Vincent Van Gogh Foundation by courtesy of the Municipal Museum in Amsterdam, and now on view through February 13.

Charles F. Johnson

THE ANGLER

AUTICALLY SPEAKING, you can't beat Charles F. Johnson when it comes to getting there "fustest with the mostest." For with Palm Beach's No. 1 sports angler, fishing's the thing, not the fish. He doesn't pile up trophies for landing the biggest sailfish, even his 935-pound marlin in April of this year didn't break any world records, but he's won a name for himself for getting the biggest catches, then releasing them.

Just a month ago he broke his world record established December 29, 1949 when he landed 26 sails off Palm Beach and released them; on January 6 this year he made it 34.

Also among his world records was the 2,835 pound catch of 14 blue fin tuna September 29, 1949 off Wedgeport, Nova Scotia.

He emerged the winner in the Cat Cay tourney in 1951 and was a member of the U.S. Team for two years in the Nova Scotia event.

Last May at Cat Cay he landed 2,623 pounds of blue fin tuna in one day.

However, despite such records, his fishing interests are as keenly concerned with conservation and marine research as with actual fishing. With John Rybovich, M. F. Baugher, Dennie Crowninshield and Bob Kleiser, in 1950 he helped found the Game Fish Research Association for conservation of sailfish off Palm Beach and is still its president. This group is responsible for changing the interest in sailfishing from getting the fish to landing them, then releasing them with tags. Prizes and certificates help preserve the competitive spirit.

In the interests of oceanographic research back in 1951, he established the Charles F. Johnson Foundation grant at the University of Miami to cover both Atlantic and Pacific sports fishing. More recently he founded the Oceanographic Foundation, of which he's president, to develop studies of sea life in the oceans of the world. The Foundation sponsors a regular publication. Now that the two-year program on research on blue fin tuna in Atlantic waters is completed the Foundation is concentrating on game fish in the Pacific.

Last November, Mr. Johnson with a group went to Ecuador and flew in an Ecuadorian Air Force plane to the Galapagos with the view to possible creation of a tourist center there to stimulate interest in sports fishing in the waters. Water temperatures, ocean currents and fishing conditions will all be part of the research going forward there, he explains.

"Few persons realize how much food we get out of the sea," he says, "what a vast and important unexplored area of the world's surface it represents."

But first, last and always, Charles F. Johnson is a fisherman at heart. He's fished from the day he was born, he insists. From the banks of creeks in his native Ohio to the lakes of Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa, he fished during his early life. Then in the 1920's he found his true love—the ocean. For he moved to South Carolina, acquired his first boat, a sea skiff, and took to the high seas off the black fish banks of the coast there.

In 1938 he moved to Florida and made the acquaintance of what he terms the greatest and most consistent fishing in the world, off the Palm Beach shore northward towards Stuart.

In the past 15 to 20 years he's become a worl' sports fisherman. For Mr. Johnson is one man who knows how to apply the marvels of the machine age to one of the world's oldest sports. During the years his business interests have grown. They include a chain of automobile dealerships, automobile and airplane distribution, dairy farming in Carolina, and now hotel interests. These are enough to keep any ordinary man tied to a desk with an afternoon of golf for recreation. But not Mr. Johnson.

"I don't really spend any more time in fishing than the average business man does on the golf course," he insists. He does it, not with mirrors, but with planes and fishing boats. As a result, he remains in active business, has a home in Biltmore Forest, another in Palm Beach that is his legal residence, and can still be found bobbing around in the ocean anywhere from Acapulco to Nova Scotia, from the Bahamas to the Pearlas Islands off Panama.

For several years he has had a plane in which to hop around the country on business, or to fly over to the islands for fishing. At present, he has an eight-passenger Lockheed Lodestar for business and an Aero Commander for short trips.

With this magic carpet at his command, Mr. Johnson is completely independent of train, plane or boat schedules. He keeps three fishing boats: "Miss Chevvy IV" here, "Miss Chevvy III" in Peru, "Barbara Susan" in Nova Scotia. Accordingly, it's just a matter of hours to hold a business conference in Detroit, hop in to see a dealer along the way, stop over in Palm Beach, then off to the Bahamas, Peru, Acapulco, Panama, or wherever the fish are biting or a tournament's going on.

Whether it's Cat Cay in the Spring for the International Blue Fin tourney . . . or Nova Scotia in the Fall for the one there . . . or Acapulco or Palm Beach in January for the International Light Tackle tourney . . . you'll find Charles Johnson there.

He likes the water so well that he and his wife made their home in Palm Beach for several seasons on their yacht. He's had three, the "Makaira," the "Aquila," and the "Cherokee"... but has none at present. Now that their new house is completed, the Johnsons have taken to dry land. But at that they chose to live right on the water, at the north tip of Everglades Island.

"People who like the sea, have it in their blood," says this man who was born far from either the Atlantic or Pacific but who found his way to both.

In Palm Beach he's a member of the Everglades and the Sailfish Clubs; in North Carolina, the Biltmore Forest Country Club; in Miami, the Rod and Reel; in Panama, the Rey Island Club and also the Rod and Reel; in the Bahamas, the Cat Cay Club.

Mrs. Johnson isn't the fishing enthusiast her husband is but at times accompanies him to tournaments. The above was taken last Spring at Cat Cay. Below he's shown with his famous 2,624-pound one-day catch in the Cat Cay tournament of that year.

Ponte Vedra

Y THE BEAUTIFUL SEA" might well be the theme of this season in Ponte Vedra, for surf and sand have never been better, not to mention the golf course. An unparalleled sequence of sunny days has kept guests and residents tanned and happy. The tennis courts, Bath Club and links have hummed with the activity that gives any resort an air of fat well-being and one and all agree that Florida is the real winter wonderland!

The season got a proper kick-off with the Gator Bowl Game. For the second year, Texas sent a team and its enthusiasts to Florida. The "Baylor Bears" (forty-eight strong) stayed at the famous "Innlet" owned by Mr. Frank Rogers. Colonists watched the boys work out on the beach, or identified them at night by their levies, sweat shirts and coats, which apparel they called their "Texas tuxedos." The Innlet manager, Mr. Stockton Rogers, even managed to bag a bear for the team, just to show he was in the spirit of things. The bear, a female, was shot near the Inn on a hunting preserve owned by Stockton, Whatley and Davin, and weighed 368 pounds. Mr. Rogers was doubly thrilled by his success as he was working a pack of hounds he had just purchased from the "Coon Hound Kennels" of Arkansas and it was their first time out for bear.

Many of the boosters of the victorious Auburn team were also in Ponte Vedra and charter buses were run from both the Innlet and The Inn. Coach George Sauer, former Annapolis Coach now in charge of the "Bears," was an Innlet guest, as was his old friend, Mr. Roman Hruska, of Washington, D. C., who is the United States Senator from Kansas. Dr. White, President of Baylor, and Mrs. White were also present. Other Washingtonians included Mrs. Louise Bullock and Mr. Robert Lewis.

The Innlet played host to Chicagoans Mr. and Mrs. Burton Spain, Mrs. Eric Ganschow and Mr. James Hammond. From Florida came Mr. and Mrs. John A. Paul and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Lynn of Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Woods-Smith of Ocala and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Baker of Stuart were also on the roster.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gaines, of Biltmore Forest, N. C., are shown lunching at the Ponte Vedra Bath Club. Mr. Gaines is the famous architect and one of the "Six Associates" firm of Asheville, N. C.

Joseph Hixon Whitney, six month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wheelock Whitney, was christened in Christ Church, with Reverend Alexander Juhan officiating. His Godmother, Mrs. Simpson, holds Joseph while his Godfather, Judge Bryan Simpson admires him.

Prominent Southerners vacationing in Ponte Vedra were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McLean, Mr. J. P. Yarbrough, Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tuggle, Miss Grace Titman and Miss Kathleen Watson, all of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Johnson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Ireland, were annual "repeat guests" from Birmingham, and Mr. W. H. May, President of Bur-mil Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Ross from Quebec, Canada, were other annual visitors.

One of the greatest attractions now current at Ponte Vedra is the regular Sunday afternoon softball game. This sport, started at first by a few fathers and sons engaged in an informal game of catch, has fast materialized into The Sunday Sport, and all social engagements, including golf, must meet the three o'clock deadline at the ball game. Mr. Howard Bissell and his four sons provided the necessary organization (and manpower) and Stockton, Whatley and Davin added their contributions to those of the Community

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE BATH CLUB IS ALWAYS A GALA OCCASION.

Association of Ponte Vedra to clay the diamond, furnish benches, and in general promote the "Fathers and Sons" to big league proportions. Hence every Sunday the colonists form an avid ring of spectators about that old ball park.

Ladies of Ponte Vedra who possess green thumbs had a chance recently to exhibit their skill. A new type of flower show, embracing Atlantic, Neptune, Jacksonville and Ponte Vedra Beaches was held. Various homes served as settings for the motif of "Party Parade." An after-game buffet, a twenty-first birthday party, and a typical cocktail party were among the many highly original ideas presented, and the purpose of the show, which was to raise funds for the ladies' own garden center, had a great success.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Davis, long popular colonists of Ponte Vedra, made recent news with their annual cattle sale and barbecue at their Alachua Ranch. A Hereford cow by the name of Domineta Mischief was sold for the record price of $14,000. She was raised on the Davis' 22,000-acre Sante Fe River property and had never been defeated in a show. Guests of the Davis party enjoyed a luncheon of barbecued buffalo following the auction.

The Inn has been seized with a fit of spring house-cleaning, and their property, as a result, never looked better. They now announce a long-time ambition, which is one hundred percent air-conditioning. A lovely road has been built around the ocean-front "Sea Horse" Cottage, and The Lake Cottage will henceforth be known as The Golf Cottage and boasts a new interior, complete with golf decor by Jackson-ville's famous decorator, Lillian McCullough. This cottage, which faces the Lagoon, now has ample facilities for house-parties, has a lounge, and card-room, in fact everything to make it a golfer's haven when he is not on the celebrated Ponte Vedra Course. "Wish you were here" for the welcome mat is sparkling . . . but be sure you have reservations first!

YACHTS and DOCKS

wo of the Longest and most luxurious yachts now berthed at the Australian Avenue dock are Mr. James Rand's Dobson-designed 130-foot "Galaxy," and the 104-foot "Evelyn", owned by Mr. Edward Swanson.

The Swanson yacht, based at the Biltmore Hotel dock last season, carries three Diesels with a combined horsepower of 900

Mr. and Mrs. William Allison of Chicago, owners of the Australian Avenue-based "Yankee Clipper," paid a recent visit to the Keys in the 70-foot Wells-designed cruiser.

"Pat-E-Jay," Burger-built cruiser owned by Mr. J. W. Gilbert of Detroit, is presently stationed at the Australian dock. Skippered by Capt. Loren Johnson on her trip down from Charlevoi, Mich., where the Gilberts spend their summers, the 53-foot four-year-old yacht cruised the inland waterway to Fort Lauderdale recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, who boarded their boat at Daytona Beach on her way South, sailed for the Keys early in February, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Wineman of Detroit.

"Commander," the 60-foot Trumpy-built boat belonging to Mr. Jacob Meyerhoff of Baltimore, is back at the Australian dock this year, along with Mr. Joseph A. Martino's 111-foot Mathis-built "Captiva." Manned by a crew of seven, the Martino yacht recently returned from a cruise to Marathon Key.

Mr. and Mrse. Lynde Selden, New York City, owners of the fishing cruiser "Murlyn II" are expected to board the Australian dock-based boat soon after the first of March.

Another Manhattan resident, Mr. Edward E. Bates, owner of the 65-foot Grady-built "Full Moon," will arrive in Palm Beach early in the Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Lontz and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Uz McMurtrie of Indianapolis, departed for Key Largo recently aboard the Lontz yacht "Atta III," returning to the Australian dock a few days later. The 65-foot Hackerbuilt cruiser sailed to Daytona Beach late last month, where the Lontz family celebrated Mr. Lontz's birthday. The "Atta III" will spend two weeks in the Bahamas later in the season.

A number of private yachts were in and out of the Brazilian Avenue dock during the past few weeks, a few of them transient, most of them permanent winter residents of the local dock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stone, of York, Pa., owners of the Greve-built "Sir Pal," are now in the resort area. Cruises to Fort Lauderdale, the Keys, and Bimini are in the offing for the 72-foot cruiser after the anticipated arrival of the Stones' three sons, George, Jack and Gene, and their families.

The Petersen-built 58-foot "Magna-Mar," owned by Mr. R. A. O'Connor of Fort Wayne, Indiana, returned to the Brazilian dock after a month in the Bahamas, where her owner induged in his favorite sport—bonefishing.

A 31-foot sailboat, "Saundering," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones, stopped briefly at the Brazilian dock before continuing on to Ft. Lauderdale and points beyond. The Jones' five-months old daughter, Hadley, was aboard the "Saundering" during the long journey down from the East Coast.

The 52-foot Chris-Craft "Laumar," property of Mr. Cooper Marsh of Roslyn Harbor, N. Y., has returned to its winter berth at the resort dock. The one-and-a-half year old yacht spent a month in Daytona Beach before joining the winter pleasure fleet in the Palm Beaches. Mr. Marsh will arrive here sometime in March, and will spend his third season in Palm Beach aboard the "Laumar."

Mr. Porter B. Chase's 55-foot houseboat "Electra," is back at the Brazilian dock after a trip to the Keys.

Mr. Herbert Day's smartly-painted "Manana III" docked at the Brazilian dock for a few days before departing for Pompano Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Day, who brought the year-old 52-foot Huckins-built cruiser down from Sarasota, where they have a winter home, flew to California in January, and will return to the "Manana" sometime this month.

Recent guests aboard Mr. Joseph Reilley's "Skoo-Kum" were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walson of New York City, and their children, Peter, 13, and Susan, 9. The Walsons arrived at Vero Beach via airplane, and motored to Lake Worth, where they stayed overnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dresser. Cruises enjoyed by the Walson family included a trip to Miami, and a somewhat shorter one to the Jupiter Island Club, where the children went swimming.

Mrs. Bertha Sinclair's twin-Diesel cruiser "Damfino III" tied up at Brazilian dock after a leisurely trip up from Key Largo, where her owner spent several days at the Ocean Reef Club. The 76-foot raised-deck yacht left recently for New Orleans—she will return to Palm Beach later this season.

A new resident at the Brazilian dock this Winter is the 67-foot steel-constructed houseboat "Sea Chest," property of Mr. and Mrs. George Frank of Pleasant Valley, Iowa. The luxuriously-appointed Atkin-designed yacht will make the Brazalian dock her home port between projected cruises to the Keys, Nassau and Florida's West Coast.

The "Sea Chest" sailed recently for Captiva off the West Coast, stopping enroute to pick up her owners' guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Cook of Moline, Illinois. At Captiva, Mr. and Mrs. Frank and their guests visited Miss Alice O'Brien of St. Paul, Minn., owner of the "Wanigan." The "Wanigan" sailed with the Frank boat on a 15 day cruise from Davenport, Iowa to Fort Myers, Florida in November.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank plan to head their Diesel-driven yacht northward about the middle of April, stopping for several days at New Orleans before proceeding up the Mississippi River.

The Walter L. Fausts' "North 'N' South," stationed at the Brazilian Avenue and Palm Beach Yacht Club docks earlier this season, is now berthed at Pompano Beach.

Mr. Joseph Regenstein's 48-foot Elco-built "Box-Office" made fishing news earlier this Winter, when her owner hooked three sailfish in rapid succession off the Palm Beaches. The "Box Office's" captain, Walt Ericson, held one rod, and her mate, Bill Black, the other, while Mr. Regenstein wrestled the first sail to the boat. Mr. Regenstein then brought the other two fish alongside.

Skippered by Mr. John Warner of Greenwich, Conn., the 45-foot ketch "Pavanne" pulled into Brazilian dock recently for a short stay. The Alfred Mason-designed boat, which was built in Holland and brought over to this country last February, has three double cabins, and "will sleep seven people comfortably," according to Mr. Warner.

Powered by one 105 horsepower Chrysler engine, the

"Pavanne" has a zinc-treated steel hull, and her deck and superstructure are constructed of teak.

Mr. Warner, who brought the trim ketch down from Greenwich, stopping off at Annapolis enroute, plans to sail her to the islands this Winter.

The John H. Richards' 48-foot cruiser "Huns-Buddy III," a familiar at the Brazilian Avenue dock, has taken several short Sunday trips on Lake Worth this season.

Two boats berthed alongside each other at the Capital Yacht Club in Washington, D. C., and now slip-mates at the Palm Beach Yacht Club are Mr. Walter Smith's "Jouet III," and Brig. Gen. Ross G. Hoyt's "Nina."

Mr. Smith, retired vice-president of Remington-Rand, brought the 40-foot Matthews-built "Jouet" down to the resort area himself, stopping off at Jacksonville to pick up Mrs. Smith. Although the Smiths have owned the trunk-cabin cruiser for 15 years, this is her first cruise in tropical waters. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who are spending their twentieth winter in the Sunshine State, will take the "Jouet" to Fort Lauderdale and Fompano later in the winter.

Brig. Gen. Hoyt, a celebrated airman in both World Wars, skippered his 39-foot Matthews-built trunk-cabin cruiser "Nina" down from the nation's capital. Mrs. Hoyt accompanied her husband on the trip.

"Blue Porpoise II," 50-foot power cruiser owned by Mr. John H. Wilson, Meadowbrook, Pa., pulled into the Yacht Club dock for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson accompanied the "Blue Porpoise" from Bayhead, N. J. to Sea Island, Ga., where they left her in the hands of her skipper and flew to their home in Pennsylvania for Christmas. The yacht's cruising agenda for the season includes a voyage to Ft. Lauderdale, Miami and points southward.

Mr. Johnson Davis, Hoosier owner of "Salty," stationed at the Club off West Palm Beach's Flagler Drive, boarded the "Miamian" for Chicago in January. Mr. Davis is expected to return to the Club sometime this month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Vanderbilt's 89-foot four-year-old ketch "Versatile" made a recent cruise to Miami.

Two of the bigger boats in the resort area are now tied up at the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel dock.

foot Diesel-powered "Carola" now grace the waterline in front of the local hotel. The Mandel yacht, delayed in Miami for several weeks due to her skipper's illness, arrived at the Biltmore a short time ago.

Mr. Stephen A. Lynch's 92-foot Mathis-built "North Star" tied up at the Biltmore dock recently for a short stay. Guest aboard the Lynch yacht were Admiral C. L. Nichols of Newport, R. I., and Mr. Boyd Brossard, Paris, France.

"Sambo V," 53-foot Chris Craft Catalina owned by Dr. Sampel Opler of New York City, is now berthed at the Biltmore.

Mr. Leonard Morey's "Blowing Clear," an early arrival at the Biltmore dock, will leave for the islands this spring, returning to the resort hotel dock briefly before beginning her trek northward in April. The 50-foot Wheeler-built boat cruised the waters off Nantucket, Cape Cod, and Montauk, L. I., during the Summer. Mr. Morey has owned the twoyear-old yacht since 1953.

"Rosalie L," 57-foot Elco-built boat owned by Mr. Frederick Snyder of Washington, D. C., is expected at the Biltmore dock sometime this season.

Mr. Theodore Granik, vice-president of NBC, cruises frequently in his 46-foot Chris Craft "Bil-Mar" between trips to Washington, D. C. Mr. Granik resides at the Beaux Arts Apartments in Palm Beach.

Many yacht-owning members of the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club have now arrived in the Palm Beach area.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Fleitas, owners of the Rybovichbuilt fishing cruiser "Vael," have arrived here from their home in Wilmington, Del.

Mr. Richard S. Beinecke, owner of "Ric-A-Dor II," returned to the resort after a two-weeks' stay in the North. The 36-foot Chris Craft has been busily plying the waters off Palm Beach in search of sailfish.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Volk of Stamford, Conn., owners of the "Sea Bird," arrived from Stamford on a recent Saturday and took the sleek Chris Craft for a cruise the same afternoon.

"Miss Chevy IV," a Rybovich-based boat owned by Sailfish Club member C. F. Johnson of Charleston, S. C., flew an astounding total of 57 red flags in two days. According to veteran Florida anglers, "Miss Chevy IV" may have set a two-day record for released sailfish.

Mrs. Louisa Carpenter's "Red Witch," at Fort Lauderdale earlier in the season, is now tied up at the Sailfish Club dock.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Widener III, owners of the 28foot Rybovich-built "Half-Pint," returned to Palm Beach late last month from their home at Lexington, Ky.

"Rubo", owner Mrs. Ruth Richardson Howell, fishing and golfing enthusiast, won second place in the fortnightly prizes awarded by the Club in its Member-Guest Fishing Tournament.

Mr. H. L. Crowley's fishing cruiser "Thunderbird," tied up again at the Club dock after a fishing trek to the Florida Kevs.

Other ardent Sailfish Club anglers are Mr. Bailey Smith. owner of the 40-foot "Quickstep," and Mr. J. P. Seeburg II. owner of "Nonaym II."

Outstanding Golf Cournaments

TO BE FEATURED DURING COMING MONTHS

OUR OUTSTANDING GOLF TOURNAMENTS have been planned for the Palm Beaches this season, with spectators to see the outstanding men and women amateurs in a trio of events at the Palm Beach Golf Club, and the nation's leading professionals at the Seminole Club's famous Latham R. Reed Pro-Am tourney.

The Seminole Club's 6,901-yard ocean-front course underwent several changes, lengthening and increasing the difficulty of the layout which is rated the finest course in Florida.

The club's big event of the year—the Pro-Amateur tourney—for $10,000-plus in prizes for the professionals competing in the affair, is scheduled for March 21-22. Lew Worsham topped the play-for-pay golfers in last year's event, carding a steady 136 for the two day, 36-hole medal play section of the tourney.

Mr. Richard Resae, a Morgantown steel executive, teamed with Ted Kroll to win the pro-amateur division, as over 50 teams competed in the resort's No. 1 golfing attraction.

Weekly Tombstone tournaments held each Sunday afternoon, the club's men's and women's championships, and the Hutton Bowl mixed foursome tournament completes the tourney list for the season.

Mr. Christopher J. Dunphy serves as chairman of the Greens Committee, with Reginald Boardman, Jr., Mr. John G. Searle, and Mr. Joseph E. Wholean assisting him. Cochairmen have been elected for the Women's Golf Committee, with Mrs. Vaughn C. Spalding and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury heading the group. Mrs. Ronald B. Balcom, Mrs. John R. Fell, Mrs. Arnold B. Chace and Mrs. Paul R. Scheerer complete the committee.

A veteran professional staff is headed by Claude Harmon, one of the country's well-known pros. He will begin his tenth season at the club. Assisting pros will be Pete Harmon, Bob Bodington with Dave Marr, assisting in the shop.

The clubrooms, which overlook the Atlantic Ocean, have been redecorated under the direction of Mr. Kimball Salisbury, and include large picture windows off the dining room, which give a scenic view of the ocean.

One of the Palm Beach Golf Club events has already been run—the Second Annual Palm Beach Father and Son Tournament. The Dexter Daniels Sr. and Jr. of Winter Haven, Florida combined a 72-78—150 to win the 36-hole medal play affair. The Leon Sikes, of West Palm Beach, Florida finished second a single stroke off the winning pace.

William Goodloe, Sr. and Jr., Valdosta, Ga., who topped the field in the inaugural finished third this year, with a 75-78—153. Young Goodloe nicknamed "Dynamite" is one of the nation's leading amateurs, and a member of the Walker Cup team.

Fourth place winners were the Frank E. Boyntons of Winter Park, Florida. Frank, Jr., the Florida High School champion and his father posted a 76-79—155. Tied at the same score were last year's runner-ups, the Hobart Manleys of Savannah, Ga., who were dropped to fifth after the two teams cards were matched to dissolve the tie.

In the net division of the family tourney, which features alternate drives and alternate shots by the fathers and sons, the Dr. Leo Vollmers, of Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, were awarded first prize. They posted a 140, the identical score carded by Dr. James B. Allan of Athens, Ga., and his son Jimmy, Jr., who took the runner-up spot after the matching of the cards. Their scores on the net side for the two days were 69-71—140. The Vollmers carried an eight handicap, the Allans a twelve.

Third place was awarded to the Manleys, as the cards had to be matched to break several teams knotted at 141, with the Robert L. Craigs, of Deerfield Beach, Florida, finishing fourth. The Manleys' card showed 72-69 (7)—141, the Craigs, 69-72 (10)—141.

A total of 36 teams competed in the increasingly popular holiday event, with contestants coming from 11 states. Among the Palm Beach twosomes competing were Mr. John Cushman, president of the Old Guard Society of Palm Beach Golfers, and his son John, Jr.; the Paul Maddocks; Dr. David Martin, and Dave, Jr.; Frank Quigleys, Sr. and Jr.; Mr. Fred W. Tuck and son Fiske; and the Howard Murrays.

The 37th Annual Palm Beach Women's Amateur Tournament, one of the state's oldest tourneys for women, is slated for February 8-12 at the Palm Beach Golf Club. A stellar field of the women golfers playing the winter golf circuit will compete in the match play affair over the par 70 6,008-yard course.

Miss Joyce Ziske, of Milwaukee, Wis., one of the nation's top young players is the defending champion for the event.

The 47th South Florida Men's Amateur golf tournament will be played at the Palm Beach Golf Club March 7-11. Mr. Robert Sweeny, former British Amateur champion who makes his winter home in Palm Beach, won last year's event in a strong sub-par display.

The Winter Golf League for Advertising Interests, which attracts a large yearly field, held its tournament in mid-January.

Miss Bessie Fenn, veteran Palm Beach golf professional who succeeded her father at the Palm Beach Golf Club, is starting her 30th year at the club.

She is assisted by George M. Gordon, who is starting his 29th season as the club's golf instructor, and Charles Maytak, assisting pro, who replaces Carroll Boggs.

Jack Walsh, who served as caddy master at the club for nearly three decades died just before returning to the Palm Beaches and is replaced by Vincent Bogdanski. FEBRUARY 4, 1955 PAGE SEVENTY-SEVEN

Fashions and Sports

HE SERIOUS SPORTSWOMAN and the most frivolous minded spectator will be equally delighted with the sports clothes and accessories being shown this season. Whether you're the leading golfer at your club, a devout sun bather, or confine your sports activities to a box at the polo games, you are bound to look more attractive than ever in costumes which the designers this season have set out to make pretty, as well as correct and comfortable.

Shorts are a good example of the turn to flattering sports costumes. Long gone are the days when they were reserved for the younger set and a very small sprinkling of sturdier lady sports enthusiasts.

Today's shorts news is the dressmaker look. It is achieved through the use of two or four unpressed pleats at the side front of the waistline. These replace the severe English stitched pleats of strictly tailored styles. The effect is one of soft flattery and a line which gives femininity to any shorts costume, and especially suits the more mature figure.

When they are tailored, shorts this season are more beautifully so than ever. Designers are taking them every bit as seriously in workmanship and fabrics as they do their most important daytime creations.

This year there are both shorter and longer versions. The so-called "baby shorts" are very brief, and are often done in linen, twill, or other bodied fabrics which take real tailoring. At the other extreme, they may be created out of almost sheer cottons. One completely frivolous shorts costume which is an import this year is made of checked gingham banded in tiers of white edged frills.

The Bermuda shorts of past seasons which are even more popular this year, are sharing honors with a new longer short called the "clam digger." These come just below the knee to give a skirt like effect. There is also the short skirt in about a Scotch kilt length. A new vogue for resort wear, the woolen versions of short skirts are very much in the news in the North, especially among the younger and college groups.

The phenomenal growth in the popularity of shorts has brought with it, the knee sock; an idea borrowed partly from our childhood and partly from the Scotch. So far, at least, knee socks are seen only with tailored shorts, usually in the Bermuda length. It is also a fashion which has found great favor with men.

The separates story is bigger news than ever. Here again the designers have put forth their best efforts. In the sports chapter of this important story, the new prettier look of the season is created with softer cuts and wonderful fabrics.

Linen, for example, can be as tailored and correct as ever, but something new has been added. Your linen sports blouse may be in a plain color, but you may also have one which is prettily embroidered in multi-colored flowers, and wear it with a linen skirt or shorts which have been especially dyed to match one of the colors of the flowers. Or, the other way around, your skirt or shorts may be embroidered, with the color pick up in your blouse.

The sleeveless blouse is again a favorite, and one of its prettiest versions is with a small Peter Pan collar. In one of the small prints which are a headline of the season, or in a plain color, the sleeveless blouse is often seen with a slim silhouette skirt and contour belt for a spectator sports costume with a definitely sleek look.

The shirtmaker, which made news in Paris not so long ago by coming out as a fashion for formal evening clothes, hasn't deserted its place in the sports scene. The shirtmaker blouse often with a pleated back, and sometimes with at least a narrow yolk for greater freedom, is ideal, for example, for golfing.

The feeling of the blouse when it is done in a pastel or small print is completely feminine, although the shirtmaker started out many years ago as a strictly tailored style.

One of the early versions of the shirtmaker was the button-down-the-front tailored golf dress—in those days definitely more noted for its sturdy durability than for its fit or beauty. But this same dress today has been worked out by the designers to combine golfing comfort with real chic. The result is a dress which is a spectator as well as an active sports fashion, and a perfectly appropriate luncheon dress for many occasions.

One of the comfortable spectator sports fashions seen in especially pretty versions this season is the pastel wool dress. Welcome on many cooler days, these frocks are often in light combinations of rabbits hair and wool. Their soft textures seem to blend into our natural outdoor settings with that "right" look of feeling very much at home. Usually their fabric texture is of such interest that designers present it in the simplest of lines, and sleeves are most frequently short.

Light wool jersey has been part of the sports picture for some time, especially in white. Nothing could be more comfortable. One very chic style has knitted bands in red and white at the neck, sleeves, and waist.

No notes about sports fashions would be complete without mention of the advances which have been made in the perennial sports fabrics, cotton and linen.

These fabrics have never been seen in such beautiful quality. Those who think there is nothing else like washable, hardy cotton will be delighted to find it this year in lovely colors and with a luxurious sheen which can hardly be distinguished from silk. In linen there is a greater variety of weights than ever, and the crease resistant qualities so important in active sportswear have been greatly increased in many cases.

In bathing suits, the Millot line will be seen worn by serious swimmers and sun bathers. This is the more covered up look we've been hearing about. It features wide shoulder straps and a very straight up and down line. The effect is very much like that of a sheath dress. Fabrics for bathing suits are varied with some of the "miracle" fabrics appearing in many new textures, designs, and colors. One striking black suit is in nylon velvet, which, of course, is outstanding on the beach before the wearer goes into the water—and then wonderfully looks just as glamorous when she comes out.

The emphasis on complete costumes which is very much a trend of the season is reflected in swim suits which have their matching beach coats. One delightful costume is in pink checked gingham trimmed in lace. There is a bathing suit, a long sleeved, buttoned-to-the-neck blouse which doubles as a beach skirt, and a very full skirt. The pieces may be worn together for a lunch and swim date, or the blouse and skirt make an appealing lady-like costume right up to cocktail time.

The costume for spectator sports again this year features the cotton, linen, or silk dress with its own cardigan trimmed in matching fabric. The cardigan itself is, if possible, more popular than ever. Cashmere is most seen, but for those who associate the cable stitch and other hand knit patterns with the sports picture, there are both cardigans and slip-ons in many individual knits in heavier wools. Several are English imports.

Inspiration for the cotton hand knits which have become such a vogue came from the French and Italian Rivieras and has taken the American beach scene by storm. The stripes, subtle color combinations including particularly black and beige, the casual necklines and sometimes sailor collars which characterize these knits are seen everywhere for active and spectator sports.

Looking ahead, one bit of news which seems bound for wide circulation is the short dress. This is a costume which is in every way a dress, but with a hemline above the knee.

For beach and sun, the costumes are part of the covered up theme of the season. One which is being featured is a hibiscus print in vertical strips on a white background. The top is shirtmaker and has long sleeves, and the brief skirt is softly pleated.

Looking ahead in the sports picture, and very much in line with the trend to complete costumes is the rumor that we are shortly to be wearing hats for sports as well as for many more occasions than we have in several seasons. The hat fashions in store are reputed to be imaginative and wonderful, and we'll be waiting to see.

Surrealist Painter Lodewijk Bruckman Prefers Florida for Artistic Inspiration

HE EXOTIC WILDNESS of Florida which has been interpreted by thousands of artists, is currently the inspiration of a young Dutch surrealist painter whom Cholly Knickerbocker has noted as destined to become a new sensation in the art world. Lodewijk Bruck-man who was one of the most discussed and highly regarded artists working on Cape Cod began reading about Florida and Sanibel Island with all its wonderful shells last Summer and decided he had to come to Florida. With his manager and adviser, Mr. Evert Burema Zeevan, he is now painting on the island near Fort Myers, Florida.

Working in a technique very much reminiscent of that of Salvatore Dali, he creates compositions which are both realistic and surrealistic, and are strikingly three dimensional.

Miscellaneous natural objects, often of the most commonplace kind, are arranged in his canvases in odd juxtaposition which mark them as surrealistic.

The possibility that there is also a more traditional feeling in Bruckman's work is evidenced by the story of his arrival in this country at Hoboken, N. J. in February, 1948.

Customs authorities there, who may or may not have been experienced art critics, looked at the thirty-four paintings Mr. Bruckman was bringing in, and immediately pronounced them "old masters," which they suspected him of smuggling into the country.

The lot was thereupon impounded for three months to the accompaniment of protests in Dutch, French and German from Mr Bruckman and Mr. Zeevan who shared the trip from the Netherlands, and also, at that time, a slight lack of fluency in the English language.

This incident, plus a rough crossing, and the fact that he was only allowed to bring $40 into the country combined to make a rather shaky entrance into the United States for the artist.

But things began to go better almost immediately when Dr. Martin Birnbaum, the art critic, saw his work and was "enthralled." A showing was arranged immediately at the Scott and Fowles Gallery in New York City.

Now settled in a growing national reputation and, again according to Cholly Knickerbocker, with leaders in society and finance battling for his work, this young artist is very much on his way.

His imaginative combination of colors, complete absorption with detail, and an arrangement of objects which is often startling are all directed to convey his unwavering beliefs—that good wins over evil and that life is spiritual, mysterious and eternal.

The wild life of Florida provides endless materials for his compositions. He and Mr. Zeeven who were welcomed to Sanibel Island with immediate hospitality have, as their means of transportation there, two bicycles which take them all over the island.

Beaches, mangrove groves, and natural wild stretches are searching places for conchs and whelks thrown up by the sea, fallen mangrove leaves turned scarlet, and strange goronia branches. These are combined with white heron plumes, sprays of wild plumes, deep sea sponges, and with some of the most commonplace objects used by Bruckman in an extraordinarily uncommonplace way.

All of these have for the artist a depth of symbolism. Among all natural objects the feather and the egg have become an indelible mark of his work.

Mr. Bruckman's renown has grown consistently since his first introduction at the Scott and Fowles Gallery in New York. Last June a still life of peaches was voted the most popular painting at the Boston Art Festival. Introduced on Cape Cod in 1953 by the Shore Studios of Provincetown, he also exhibited at the Peter Hunt Studios in Orleans, and gave a one-man show at the Provincetown Inn.

Showings of his work are currently planned for Cuba, the Bahamas, and the Dutch West Indies.

Among his paintings, "In Memoriam," which he painted after a Dutch underground friend who was shot by the Nazis, attracted wide attention on Cape Cod last Summer. It portrays a pair of hob nail boots toes down in the soil from which calla lilies are growing. Spiritual in its meaning, Bruckman's faith that good triumphs over evil is symbolized in the just sprouting green plant under the fighter's boots.

Mr. Bruckman was born in The Hague in 1913. One of identical twins, his brother, Karel Lodewijk Bruckman, lives in Amsterdam and has made an important reputation both as a painter and state designer. He did all the designing in connection with the crowning of Queen Juliana. Interestingly Karel is right handed and Lodewijk creates his more and more popular work with his left hand.

His works will be displayed at the Hendrika Hobbelink Gallery in Palm Beach starting February 14 through the 26th.

Bruckman studied eight years at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in The Hague.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Howe of Chicago have returned for the winter to their charming home in Vero Beach, as have Mr. and Mrs. George Fry, also of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wallace of Rochester, N. Y., are just completing their new home on the beach and will be in Vero Beach for the winter season.

Mrs. Anne Morrissey of River Forest, Illinois, will be a neighbor of the Wallaces, as she also is building a home on the beach.

A pleasant Sunday evening took place at the Cottage. Among guests were: Mr. and Mrs. James K. Stone; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Briggs; Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Gravette; Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clarke and their house guest, Mrs. Jinette Payne of Paris and New York; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wallace; Mr. and Mrs. George Fry; and Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Turner.

Guests staying at the Cottage are: Mr. and Mrs. David Cook of Frankfort, N. Y., and Mrs. Edwin Franz of New York City.

Mrs. John Hopwood gave a dinner at the Cottage for twenty-four guests. The two tables were beautifully decorated with miniature poinsettias.

Mr. and Mrs. John Packard of Toy Town, Winchenden, Mass., have returned to the Royal Park Inn and will be in Vero Beach until March the first.

Among the winter visitors at the Driftwood are: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berke of Gary, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Hale Noa Oettinger of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Roger K. Above are Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Rogers who are wintering at Vero Beach.

Mower; Mrs. Henry H. Brady; Col. and Mrs. Joseph W. Walton; Mr. John E. Woodruff; and Mrs. Robert F. Schenck, Jr.

The early season in Vero Beach was quite gay with many young people home for the holidays. Among them were: Mr. Kenneth Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Sharp of Chicago, Illinois;

Miss Jane Stone, Miss Mary Stone and Mr. George Stone, the son and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Stone who live in Chestnut Hill, Pa., and have a summer home in the Pocono Mountains, and spend the winter in Vero Beach;

Miss Margo Beadle, Mr. Grant Beadle and Miss Lynn Beadle, who are the daughters and son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant Beadle who have just bought a home in Vero Beach. As house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Beadle had as well as their children: Mrs. H. H. Brady and Mr. and Mrs. William Maxwell Brady.

Miss Lee Oliver of Wheaton, Ill. and Melbourne, was given a large reception at the home of her grandmother, Mrs.

Mark Oliver, on December 23 to announce her engagement to Mr. Grant Beadle.

Mr. Charles S. Walton, III, the son of Colonel and Mrs. Joseph W. Walton, was home from the Pennsylvania Military College at Chester, Pa.

Also at home for the holidays were: Miss Sandra Ryburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ryburn; Mr. John Charles Mitchell, son of Mrs. Charles Mitchell and the late Mr. Mitchell; and Mr. Wilford Hardee, son of Dr. and Mrs. Bacon Hardee. Young Mr. Hardee attends V.M.I.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill P. Barber, on December 27, gave an engagement announcement party for their daughter, Miss Carolyn Barber and Mr. Jules Michael Bacal of New York. The Barbers entertained one hundred young people.

A lovely wedding that took place on December the 28th was that of Miss Ellen Avis and Dr. Hugh Lanier Farrior. Dr. Edward Gabler, pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church and Rev. Farrior, father of the groom, officiated. Mrs. Farrior is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Brashear Avis and the late Mr. Avis. She looked perfectly beautiful in her wedding gown of ivory satin and rose point lace. Her vail was an heirloom, also of rose point lace and tulle. The bridesmaids wore long green dresses and carried red poinsettias with matching floral crowns. Dr. and Mrs. Farrior will make their home in Richmond, Virginia, after a short honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clarke have returned to Vero Beach again this year and are living on their yacht, "The Reverie." The Clarkes are from Newport and New York, but hope soon to have a winter home here.

Miss Jane Hodges gave a lovely cocktail party at the Ocean Grill for a hundred of her many friends. The decorations were beautiful and everyone had a marvelous time.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Retzer also entertained at a housewarming party for two hundred. They have just completed their new home and it is most attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Houston entertained three hundred guests at the Riviera, right on the Indian River. Everyone had a great deal of fun as they had their guests circulate both inside and right on the edge of the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ham are here with their daughter, Miss Terry Ham. They are also hoping to build in Vero Beach in the not too distant future. The Ham's were formerly of Chicago.

Mrs. John Ballantyne of Jenkintown, Pa., and who now owns the Windswept Hotel in Vero Beach, has introduced Mr. Jahn of the Bay Head Yacht Club to Vero Beach. The food is marvelous and Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Farrior gave a luncheon there for the bridal party of Miss Ellen Avis and their son Dr. Farrior.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Roger also entertained for Miss Avis at the Cottage with coffee, eggnog and sandwiches. It was very pretty as it was held in the garden of the Cottage, under the huge oak trees.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Woodcox of Atlanta, Ga., have been spending some time at the Windswept as has Mr. Burton McCollum, of Houston, Texas.

There were two very nice parties given; the first, the open house of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Vocelle and their children, Jim, Jean, Charlie, Betty, Basil, Angel and Margaret. This is an annual party and always looked forward to by all.

The second of the two parties was given by Mr. and Mrs. James F. Kressler at their home on Cordova Avenue.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Art Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adderley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schenck, Col. and Mrs. Joseph W. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Craword, Mrs. Virginia McGrath, Mr. Paul Methuen of London, England, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Boye, III, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Memmott, Mr. and Mrs. William Letchworth, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hopwood of Montreal, Canada, and Mr. John M. Warner of Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Miller of Buffalo, New York are spending the winter at The Cottage and expect very soon to move to Vero Beach permanently. Mrs. Miller is the former Miss Frances Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Gabel have as their house guest Mr. Gabel's mother, Mrs. William Jacob Gabel of Syracuse, New York. After her visit in Vero Beach, Mrs. Gabel, Sr., will make a short stop in Philadelphia and New York before returning to her home.

Among Vero Beach Winter visitors are Mrs. William Jacob Rabel and Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Rabel.

THE EMERALD BEACH HOTEL

located directly on the ocean in the exclusive Cable Beach section of Nassau, the Bahamas, poses here for its first portrait since landscaping and other finishing touches were added. The hotel, the first major hostelry to be built in Nassau in more than 25 years, has 300 guests rooms, each with tub bath and shower, and is completely air-conditioned. The beautifully landscaped grounds cover more than 25 acres and include an Olympic-size outdoor salt water swimming pool as well as a one-third of a mile private ocean beach. Owned and operated by multi-millionaire oil, hotel and realty tycoon, Leo F. Corrigan of Dallas, Texas, the Emerald Beach Hotel cost more than $7,000,000 to build and another $3,500,000 to furnish and decorate. Frank A. McNellis is the general manager.

- at the Miramar

THE SEASON AT MIRAMAR INN had an auspicious opening with the spacious grounds facing the west side of Lake Worth in top-notch condition and aflame with poinsettias and crotons. The putting greens and shuffleboard courts are a scene of much activity The weekly bridge parties and Games Nights are in progress and will be held throughout the season.

J. Stanley Smith, owner, reports bookings for a capacity house, as usual, with the hotel filled for the season which runs into early April. Practically all of the guests have already arrived and are embarked upon a busy social season, not only at the hotel but participating in the beach sports and social activities.

A social event of the early season attended by all of the Miramar guests, was the wedding of Stanley Robert Smith, 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith, Jr., of Virginia Beach, Va., and West Palm Beach, and grandson of Mr. J. Stanley Smith, Sr. His marriage to Miss Nancy Jane Hunt, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Hunt of Cincinnati, took place in Bethesda Church, Palm Beach, followed by a reception and luncheon at the Miramar. The young couple have returned to Chapel Hill, N. C., and will soon be at Camp Knox where Mr. Smith is completing his Army training.

Most recent arrivals are Miss Genevieve Ryan and Miss Genevieve Cassaway of Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Lewis N. Clark of Orange, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Clements Batcheler of Glen Falls, N. Y., and Mrs. Jean Thomas of Glen Falls; Miss Katherine Chisolm and Mrs. P. S. Lamb of Petersburg, Va.

The Inn is more like an exclusive club than a hotel, with the same guests who are now friends returning year after year. Among the 'Old Guard' who have arrived for the season are: Mrs. Mattie R. Bitting of Durham, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Huffard and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Campbell of Wytheville, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Ross H. Woodruff of Aurora, Ohio; Miss Helen Buckmaster of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Coyner of Marion, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baldwin of Orchard Lake, Mich., with their daughter, Miss Elsie Baldwin; Mr. and Mrs. John Birkenhead of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McMillen of Essex Falls, N. J.; Miss Katherine Chisolm and Mrs. P. S. Lamb of Petersburgh, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McGregor and Miss Margaret McGregor of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Shore of Bryn Mawr, Pa

From New York City and vicinity are: Mrs. George D. Perry and Mrs. John Patterson, both of 51 Fifth Avenue: Mrs. George T. Moody also of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. James Todd of Richmond Hills, L. I.; Mrs. Harrison I. Cooke of Baldwin, L. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Mason P. Mills of Stony Brook, L. I.

Among Virginia guests for several winters are: Dr. J. Carter Walker and his daughter, Mrs. Walker Craigie of Richmond; Dr. and Mrs. Byrd C. Willis of Range; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Beverly of Alexandria, and Stanley G. Rogers of Bluefield, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Broomell of Cincinnati, Ohio, are at the Inn for several weeks.

How Naples Started

HE STORY GOES that a combination of Kentucky bourbon and a glorious sunset were responsible for the founding of Naples. General John S. Williams, a senator from Kentucky and the hero of the battle of Cerro Gordo in the Mexican War and his friend Colonel Walter H. Haldeman, owner and publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, anchored their chartered schooner off Naples late one afternoon in 1885, sampled their Kentucky toddies and watched the sun go down in a blaze of color.

"Walter," the General said, "this is the most beautiful place in America—let's build a town here."

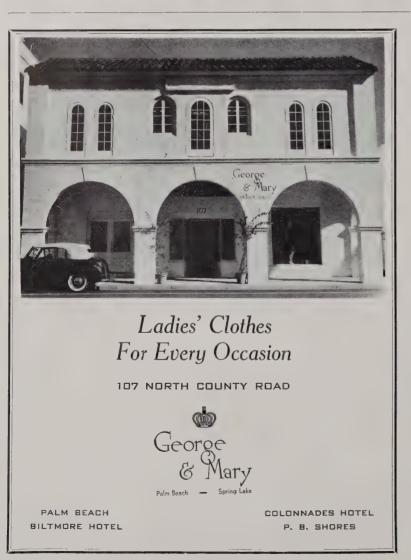

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Xanders of Garrison, Md., at the Beach Club Hotel at Naples.

The Beach Club Hotel at Naples saw Santa who had a fine time with the children wintering at the Florida West Coast resort center. From the left, Mrs. A. J. Tucker, and Tia Tucker, Houston, Texas; Mrs. H. W. Pratt, Glen Head, N. Y. and her children, Jenifer, Pamela, Hillary, and Dr. Pratt and Mr. Tucker.

They acquired 20,000 acres of land for a "song," employed a French army engineer named Champney and founded the town of Naples. But until 1946 it remained a sleepy little trading town and an exclusive resort for a few wealthy families, the majority Kentuckians. Since 1946, however, it has become the most outstanding resort on the Gulf coast.

Perhaps the greatest charm of Naples is its peacefulness. By ordinance and by planning but mostly by mutual cooperation the town has preserved itself from the hurly-burly of neon and honky tonk that seems to have taken charge elsewhere in Florida. The result is one of the few remaining unspoiled resorts on the American mainland.

Begun in 1888 the famous old Naples Hotel is still the center of most of the town's social activity during the winter months. Enlarged and modernized many times the historic old hostelry is visited each winter by some guests that have been making annual pilgrimages to Naples for nearly half a century.

Northwards from the hotel are four miles of snow white beach with spacious homes set back from the Gulf and surrounded with the verdant foliage of tropical Florida. On the northern boundary of the town and along a graceful curve of the coast is the beautiful and modern Beach Club Hotel with its room and apartment accommodations. Nearby is the There's an air of continental charm here . . . plus a feeling that is distinctly Nassau. The cuisine and service are notable . . . the location superb—overlooking the harbour, secluded in its own magnificent tropical estate, yet just a step from everything. Enjoy swimming and water sports at two beautiful private beaches or in the pool. Tennis on championship courts . . . golf at the Nassau Country Club. Dine and dance in the air-conditioned Continental Room. Bask in glorious summer sun this winter at the luxurious British Colonial Hotel.

To the south of the town are the Ten Thousand Islands which have rightly brought the reputation of a fisherman's paradise to Naples. Tarpon is the king of the local fish and is to be found in the passes and quiet bays that are minutes from the town. With the tarpon are snook, blues, mackerel, kings, mangrove, redfish and bonita. For the hunter there are deer and wild turkey, and duck are abundant.

Kentuckians no longer hold sway in this lovely little resort town; it's winter guests now come from every state in the union. They come for many reasons; the lovely beaches, the fishing, the ideal weather, modern yet gracious hotel accommodations, tennis and golf, but mostly because of Naples friendliness and charm and its preservation of those peaceful days associated with the resorts of a generation ago.

"WHERE SOCIETY SPENDS ITS EVENINGS"

For those who are never satisfied with the ordinary

Lincoln is designed especially for those who have confidence in their own good taste—for those with the daring to appreciate the unusual, the distinctive.

For you will note in Lincoln a dramatic difference—not merely in over-all length (eleven and a half inches longer from head to taillight)—or that lower, faster look. It's in the subtle sweep of line, curve of chrome, brilliance of styling. From the striking new front grille to the dual exhausts, this is the kind of beauty that depends on restrained lines, straightforward design. But Lincoln's difference does not stop with distinctive beauty.

In performance, too, Lincoln delivers even more than might be expected of a fine car.

First, there's amazing Turbo-Drive. With no frustrating lag, no unpleasant jerk, new Turbo-Drive gives one unbroken sweep of silent power—through every speed range. To understand the difference, you must drive a new Lincoln. We can tell you about Lincoln's brand-new engine and the other revolutionary engineering changes. But, again, the real proof is in the driving.

So may we make a suggestion? See your Lincoln dealer. One drive in a Lincoln or Lincoln Capri will prove the vast difference between Lincoln and any other car.
